The Reptile Gods

The most ancient Civilization known by the man: The Sumerian, tell us in their ancient writings about the existence of beings out of this world, coming from the stars.

The Ancient Sumeria had its heydays between 3000-2000 B.C. According to the translations of the Sumerian tablets made by Zecharia Sitchin, writer, a great ancient languages polyglot, he tells us that in the ancient Sumeria there existed and visited this world some beings called Anunnaki which means "The ones who came to the Earth from the sky". In these translations that Zecharia Sitchin made, he explains that these gods came from the stars and genetically modified Homo Erectus to create Homo Sapiens. That means, to create us.

What Zecharia Sitchin does not tell us is that these beings Anunnaki had reptile form, with a humanoid body full of scales.

How do we know this? Simple. The Sumerian left us several clues about these beings: thousands of representations that can be found in the paintings traced in their caves, stone statuettes made at image and likeness to their gods.

The Sumerian were the first to talk about these Anunnaki, but they were not the only ones who talked about these beings, these gods.

In Mexico, thousands of kilometers away from the Sumerian culture, and with an abysmal difference in time —3000 years later— the ancient Mayas worshipped a god called Quetzalcóatl, the famous feathered serpent.

He was one of the most famous among their long collection of the gods they worshipped and which, according to them, came from the stars. The same definition the Sumerian gave to these beings.

The words that build up the name of Quetzalcóatl are Quetzal that means 'feather' and cōātl that means 'serpent.'

For the Maya culture and other folks like the Nahuátl, the brother of Quetzalcóatl was Tezcatlipoca, which name means: 'Black Smoking mirror.' Tezcatl, 'mirror;' tliltic, 'black;' poctli 'smoke.'

According to the Toltecs, these gods were rivals. The same as the gods Enki and Enlil of Sumerian culture, who at the beginning were brothers and then became rivals. A coincidence, a big coincidence between both cultures greatly separated by time and distance.

Two supreme gods from both Mesoamerican civilizations.

Resuming Toltec Civilization, there existed a god called Gucumatz, who was described as “A Wisdom Serpent,” the one who passed the knowledge to humankind. Its Maya counterpart is believed to be Quetzalcóatl, and in Yucatán, this god was called Kukulcan.

Is it that Gucumatz, Quetzalcóatl, and Kukulcan were the same god Anunnaki, Enki who transmitted his knowledge to the Sumerian?

Another civilization that also had these reptilian gods was the Inca Civilization. They worshipped a god called Urcaguary, to whom they called “The God of the Underground Treasures.” This god was represented as a huge reptile with deer head. And in his tail, he wore little gold chains.

Urcaguary was considered too as “The divinity of what was underground”. The same name recalls to a Sumerian city called Ur. The name of Urcaguary starts with “Ur.” Many natives, in the surroundings, pronounce this god’s name as Ur-cawary. Another interesting coincidence…

In North America, the Hopi tribe, who was located in Arizona, state that their ancestors were visited by beings who moved in big flying shields and that, also, mastered the art of chopping and transporting huge stone blocks. The same as the ability to build enormous and long tunnels and buildings underground.

Hopi tribe calls Sheti to a reptilian race that lives underground, and which they call “The serpent brothers”. Same as the Inca civilization, the Hopi tell us that these beings lived under the ground. Urcaguary lived underground.

And the coincidences go on and on in all these civilizations, in spite of the fact of being separated by gigantic amounts of time and kilometers.

The Hopi also had a feathered serpent god called Baholinkonga, and the Native American culture is full of serpents. Even the famous and mysterious mound with serpent form in the State of Ohio.

Now, in Asia, in India specifically, we find that in Hindu culture there are some beings called Nagas, which are demigods with serpent form.

In the epic text Mahabharata, written in the third century B. C. it tells us that the Nagas tend to be negative beings. The text is called “The Hunters of all the Creatures”. It stated that the serpent, these beings, had a venomous poison, great power, and excessive strength, and they always tried to eat other creatures.

In the same continent, but 1500 years away from Hindu mythology, we find Chinese mythology, which is known thanks to texts that belong to Han Dynasty time. This mythology talks about its uncountable gods, such as Lóng Wáng, “The Dragon King”.

We also have other gods such as Fucanglong, who is ”The Dragon of the Lost Treasures”; ShenLong, “The Dragon of the Rain”; DinLong, “The Dragon of the Earth”.

The mythology has numerous Dragon gods. And if we deduce, these dragons have reptile form; these beings are really reptilian beings.

In the Oceanic Continent, in Australian mythology, we have The Rainbow Serpent, a being that forms part of that aboriginal Australian culture. This serpent belongs to the “Time of the Dream”, an earlier era to humankind, in which the spirits gave shape to the Physical World and established its rules and laws.

The Rainbow Serpent is not a proper god, as in Australian mythology gods do not exist, but there is a sacred being that belongs to a big conglomerate of stories that build up aboriginal spirituality.

In all these civilizations we see that it does not matter time nor distance from which they reached their boom. In all of these, we see the same story in a loop: their gods that come from the stars and with reptilian form.

We can appreciate and deduce, now, that the Anunnaki gods, of which Zecharia Sitchin talks about, for example: Anu, Enki and Enlil; they were not only worshipped in Sumeria, as by having lived and being thousands of years old, and having spaceships, they could easily travel all around the Earth and take with them all the different human races they had created, and place them in different continents of the planet so they could create civilizations in all the world and they could worship them from different points in the Earth.

Obviously, the Anunnaki taught different languages to humans to divide them, and is because of that each ancient civilization, these gods: Anu, Enki, Enlil, Marduk, among others, were named in different ways throughout history and each civilization.

But, why would the gods do that?

We Are Reptilians Food

These reptile gods that lived among humans, as the ancient Sumerian Tablets say, and as The Bible reassures in the Old Testament; these reptile gods, what did they feed of? What did these reptile gods eat…?

So, these reptile gods were in an evolving stage, in which they were advanced and very close to get to the fourth dimension… they were about to evolve.

These gods eat in two ways: eating food, like us —meat and vegetables—; and human flesh too…

…the other way, when these gods came to the Earth, they had the ability or developed the ability to feed from frequency, through the energy we emanate with feelings and emotions and also with thoughts. That means these beings had already the ability to feed from energy.

That is why when they created the Sumerian civilization, the first human civilization, they realized that we could not only serve them as slaves but also, they, these gods, realized we could serve them as food. Energy food.

It should be noted that from these gods, the most advanced, would rather feed from energy, from all the energy that living creatures emanate. While the others chose to feed from meat, vegetables and human flesh…

There are many, many researchers who come to this conclusion. Such is the case of David Icke in his books: The Robots' Rebellion (1994), And the Truth Shall Set You Free (1995), The Biggest Secret (1999), and Children of the Matrix (2001).

Carlos Castañeda refers to these beings as "The Predators of Humankind". Gnostics claim that the Archons feed from us.

But among all these researchers, the one closest to the goal, who has been more accurate than anyone in everything related to Anunnaki, was Salvador Freixedo. His researches do not leave doubts in the books, and he shows real evidence that there are gods who feed from us.

However, how do we know this is real? What do these researchers base on to state that these beings feed from our bodies and our energy, such as feelings and thoughts?

To answer this, from this point, we will start to analyze the evidence left through the history of humankind. And we shall see that in it, it is proved a very, very, very, true possibility…

To start with, we have to understand that our ancestors were not crazy, not even barbarians as school try to persuade us. Our ancestors were intelligent, beings with advanced knowledge in Maths, Astronomy, Architecture, for example, the Pyramids, which, if intended to be replicated nowadays, it would be almost impossible in spite of all the technology we have. This has been proved by Archaeology itself.

But if our ancestors were so intelligent and advanced, why would they offer human sacrifices? Why did they do it?

The answer is easy: the gods manipulated all the ancient civilizations, making them believe that if they did not perform these sacrifices, they would cause catastrophes, destroy cities, among many other natural phenomena they were capable of cause.

The condition was simple: or there were sacrifices, or everybody would be destroyed.

These gods fed from the low frequencies when we died or when we were afraid, and of the emanation from our burnt flesh, which pleased them a lot. Even, as I said, some of these gods and their hybrids (half-human half-reptile) who were the great priests and kings that ruled the ancient civilizations, drank the blood and ate the flesh of our ancestors.

Now, if you understood the previous thing, about our ancestors not being crazy nor even being barbarians, that they were as intelligent as us. So the only thing that differentiated them from us was that they possessed technology of the gods, but they did not understand it. But nowadays we can understand how technology is itself: how does a computer work, how does a plane fly. Nowadays we have just started to understand it…

Now, let us see all the human sacrifices that have been done in the name of these gods through history.

Let us start with the most ancient civilization, the Sumerian. In which shepherds, to please their gods, sacrificed their animals burning them, reaching to them the perfumed smoke. That tell us the Sumerian Tablets.

After that, at some point, the reptile gods realized they did not only like the smell of burnt meat, but also the smell and taste of burnt human flesh.

In Mexico, the Aztec made human sacrifices for the Sun not to turn off. For them, the blood was a source of sacred life, and it was offered to the god Huitzilopochtli. This civilization was quite brutal with the sacrifices of their captured enemies as well as with those of the volunteer folks.

Historians say that the humans offered as sacrifice had to climb to the top of the pyramid and there a priest cut them from the throat to the stomach in order to take their heart out and then give it to Huitzilopochtli.

Mayas performed sacrifices too. In order to do that, they played cosmogonic myths, which had an important religious and ideological meaning; something clearly seen in their famous ball game at which the losers where sacrificed to Quetzalcóatl.

In Peru the Incas, to avoid natural disaster, made sacrifices and offered them to their gods. Usually, they sacrificed prisoners and children who were raised for this dark purpose: To be sacrificed to their gods.

Celts were known for making human sacrifices for religion. They were always guided by a druid (a man with authority and who, among Gaelic and Celt folks, could play priest, teacher, judge and also public administrator). The sacrifice consisted on burying a blade at a man's back and watching how he moved until death. These spasms were considered as gods' prophecies.

Also, the millenary Chinese culture was marked by human sacrifices for many dynasties, especially at Shang Dynasty time.

Chinese practiced three types of sacrifice: the first one was the pit, where young men were sacrificed: they were replanted, and buried without their material belongings —they were buried alive; the second one was the institution where children and babies were violently sacrificed with no material belongings; the third one was confining, where little girls were sacrificed to be buried after that according to the ritual.

One of the most ancient and interesting civilizations is the Carthaginians, who performed human sacrifices out of two reasons: the favor of the gods, and population control. They sacrificed the newborns. It is believed that between 800 – 146 B.C, this civilization sacrificed 2000 babies.

It is also worthy to mention the Hindu civilization. They venerated, with sacrifices, the goddess Shakti, and in Bengal, these sacrifices were practiced until XIX century.

It is unbelievable how these gods manipulated all these ancient civilizations. However, this does not end here. One of the books that clearly show us how the gods demanded human sacrifices since the beginning of the times is The Bible. And we see how in the Old Testament, Yahweh, this god, self-called the only god and creator of humankind, demanded sacrifices to ease his anger.

For example, we read at JUDGES 11:31: "Whatever comes out of the home of my house to meet me when I return in triumph from the Ammonites will be the LORD's and I will sacrifice it as a holocaust."

Well, holocaust comes from the Latin holocaustum. And, according to the Israelites, it means: "sacrifice at which the victim is completely burnt."

In another biblical cite, we can read: "And Jehovah said to Moses: Take all the princes of these people and hang them before Jehovah, in front of the Sun and Jehovah's anger will turn away from Israel" —Numbers 25:4.

In Exodus 13:1, 2: "Jehovah said to Moses: Consecrate to me every firstborn male. The firstborn from every womb among the Israelites belongs to me, both of man and beast."

In order to understand this verse, we have to know what consecrate means. According to the definition, it means: Dedicate or grant a person or other thing to God as a cult or vow.

We also read in Exodus 22:29, 30*: "You shall not delay the news of your harvest nor winery, you shall offer me the firstborn of your sons. You shall do the same with your ox's and sheep's firstborns. For seven days he will be with his mother and at the eighth day you will offer him to me."*

It is clear that this god Jehovah was the very same God Enlil. We will see it later.

In Greece, in the Greek mythology, offerings and sacrifices were made in the name of the gods to gain their favors. We have, for example, in the story of the Minotaur, that the Athens sent fourteen young people to feed the beast.

At the beginning of the Roman Republic, the people who broke their promises and tricked others were offered as sacrifice to their gods.

Romans offered war prisoners and virgins to their gods. Also, in the Roman Empire, the popular custom of killing sons, called filicide, was related to the patria potestas, which allowed paterfamilias to sell, kill, offer to the gods, subordinate into any activity, and devour the sons.

According to Plinio "The Old," human sacrifices were abolished by a senatorial command in the year 97 B.C. and the Roman Empire forbade these acts calling them barbarian.

But, really do all these sacrifices end here? Does the story of human sacrifice end with this prohibition of Rome? Anyone would say yes. Well, this is not entirely true...

Human sacrifices were changed for gladiator fights. They camouflaged these human sacrifices turning them into a show for all the people, but no one protested and no one considered it as a barbaric act.

This is how the gods camouflaged these human sacrifices, and nowadays they are still carried out, but with other names: the Holy Inquisition, the Crusades, the First and Second World War, the false aerial accidents like the one of Germanwings, or like the hijacked plane in Malaysia, or the Twin Towers attack, etc.

But in this "Accident" at the Twin Towers, specifically, such was the ritual that we can even see the faces of these demons in the smoke of the Twin Towers burning, the faces of these reptilian gods that begin to materialize in this third dimension. It was so much the energy these beings got from the burning human flesh that these gods began to materialize.

Also, the so-called aerial "accidents" like that of Germanwings are considered human sacrifices. This does not mean all accidents that occur are considered sacrifices for these gods. However, those that are made on ritual dates, and those that are very noisy, should be considered as planned for these gods to be fed.

At present time there are many clues of these sacrifices still being made. For example, the satanic sacrifices performed to be able to communicate with these demons, which actually are these reptilian gods. And this is endorsed by the millions and millions of people who have disappeared worldwide, year after year, women and children included. Where are all of these people going? Well, obviously they are sacrifices this elite performs. Although it is hard to believe, it is the reality...

Dinosaurs Extinction and the War between Two Races

Sixty-five million years ago, there was a war between the Reptilians coming from the constellation of Orion and the Lyrans from the constellation of Lyra. This war lasted many years, and in one of the battles in which the Vegans (from the star Vega, which is in the constellation of Lyra), who had made an alliance with the Lyrans to put an end to the Reptilians, were fighting, they decided to flee and discovered a planet. That planet was Earth.

These Vegans landed on Earth. They decided to hide in it from the Reptilians. Obviously, the Reptilians found them, they decided to attack them with nuclear technology, while the vegans decided to counterattack with their last nuclear weapons of their last remaining ships, producing then this Great War on Earth.

In those times the dinosaurs already existed.

When the Galactic Confederation realized that the vegans and Reptilians were using nuclear weapons on the virgin planet called Earth, which they were observing and guarding their evolution, they decided to intervene. They sent two of their most powerful races: the Carians and the Felines, with the only mission of safeguarding as much life as possible existing on Earth so the living beings there could continue evolving.

Upon arriving on Earth, the Carians decided to save the dinosaurs by moving them, guiding them to the Abzu (the interior of the planet Earth). While the Felines guarded the entrances of the North Pole and South Pole. In this way, they managed to save a lot of dinosaurs. Although many of the dinosaur species were not saved due to the number of nuclear weapons used in this war, most of the dinosaur species were saved in the Abzu, in the interior of the Earth.

Interestingly, the Carians and Felines also saved a very primitive race of human beings. Some of us were hidden in the Abzu, while others were saved in the caverns. That is how it was possible to save a large number of living beings on Earth.

The Felines, when this battle was over, gave an ultimatum to the Reptilians to move away from the planet Earth. Otherwise, they would have problems with that race, the only one capable of facing them.

The few Reptilians left alive withdrew when they won the battle. That is how it was possible to save as many species of dinosaurs on Earth.

What they tell us in school about the dinosaurs that became extinct due to a huge meteorite is false. They continue to live in the Abzu, inside the Earth...

At the end of this great war of Orion and the Reptilians being victorious, the Galactic Confederation decided that the Carians would take over the safety of planet Earth. But the Carians, living so long with the dinosaurs in the Abzu, decided to modify them genetically to accelerate their evolution, being born then a new reptilian sub-race. That is how the first race with intelligence started.

Humans were not the first to evolve and have intelligence. It was this new reptilian race that takes us millions of years of advantage in technology and intelligence and that is within the depths of the Earth. However, this is not the only intelligent race...

The Creation of the Giants and the Man

The Carians passed on their knowledge to their new creation, this new reptilian race. It is there where the construction of new civilizations started, in the entrances of the Abzu. Meanwhile, on the surface of the Earth, the hominids began to evolve slowly. This is how four million years ago, approximately, the Carians decided to abandon and grant the planet to the Galactic Confederation, leaving these Reptilians very advanced both technologically and spiritually.

This reptilian race —Intraterrestrials or Intraterrestrial Reptilians— considered the Carians as their guides and creators.

Very rarely Intraterrestrials came to the surface of the Earth. This was because they did not like the surface climate. They were already completely adapted to the warm and constant climate they had inside the Abzu.

This race came to the surface only for the purpose of scientific research to study the various species that existed in it. There they realized that the hominids had many signals of intelligence; more than the rest of the species that existed on the planet. It was a really accelerated evolution, which they began to study more closely.

For a long time, four hundred thousand years ago approximately, a mother ship from Orion arrived to the Earth with over four hundred Reptilians and two hundred grey ones beings (the grey ones) —this last race, according to the Sumerian tablets, was called as The Igigi—. These two races came to Earth on their mother ship because they were escaping from an intergalactic war. They were looking for a refuge, in this case, a planet, with enough natural resources to survive.

It should be noted that this race that came to Earth was not a pure race of Reptilians who time ago, once came to our planet, but was a sub-race, a secondary race of these Reptilians from Orion.

Anu was the chief commander, and his two sons, Enki and Enlil, were the sub-heads of the reptilian caravan that had arrived on Earth. Both brothers were always in a very tough competition to see which of the two would be the heir to the throne since Anu was the king and boss of this sub-race.

When they arrived, they decided to build a settlement and create a dimensional portal to communicate with their planet. And for this, they decided to redirect the causes of the river Euphrates and Tigris. And they also began to extract the natural resources of our planet, and many minerals, especially, gold.

All the heavy mining, construction, and mining tasks were entrusted to the Igigi. But these Reptilians did not count on them, at some point, rebelling against the construction of this portal and extraction of minerals, so these Reptilians summoned an Assembly; and it is at this point when Enki convinces his father, Anu, and the entire Anunnaki Council, to create a Lulu, that is, a slave.

Enki had realized that there was a primitive being, which denoted and gave signs of primitive intelligence. He was the one who had the idea of genetically modifying that primitive being. All of this was done to be able to replace the grey ones with these new slaves.

Meanwhile, the Intraterrestrials had not realized that these beings from Orion had already arrived on our planet. It was not until much later that they realized that there was already a race that had begun to manipulate Homo erectus genetically, until these new visitors started doing these experiments, and creating technology on the surface of the Earth. Therefore, these Intraterrestrial beings decided to appear before this caravan and realized that these Orion beings were very few.

In the interview with Anu, they came to an agreement: that the visiting Reptilians would not intervene in the depths of the Abzu, that they would not extract the natural resources from the interior of the Earth. While the Intraterrestrials would allow them to finish the portal so they can communicate to their planet and be able to return to it.

But this was a deal with which Anu cheated to the intraterrestrial beings. Anu felt afraid because in reality he was outnumbered. In addition, they did not have many weapons to fight against the Intraterrestrials. But being both reptilian races, they decided to share their knowledge and technology. This is how they began to build their settlements much faster.

In this same period of time, the Galactic Confederation detected the mothership on the surface of the Earth. Then they decided to send a group of Carians and see what kind of plans these reptilian beings had.

Upon arriving on Earth, the Carians realized that the Intraterrestrials —

Their creation— were already collaborating with this race from Orion, so they decided to meet with Anu to know the plans of his race, so Anu once more resorted to lie indicating that he was going to build a portal to be able to communicate with his planet and return to it once the war was over.

Anu knew that in reality, the Galactic Confederation did not have enough resources to take care of them on planet Earth because they were investing them in the war. The Carians also knew it, so they decided to stay and watch over these visiting Reptilians.

After several attempts and failures of Enki at creating monsters and beings without enough intelligence to do the tasks that his race needed and that the grey ones had refused so much to do, he was about to abandon the project because he could not find the exit from his labyrinth that he had engineered himself.

Because of that, the Carians decided to help Enki by transmitting their knowledge and technology on how they had managed to evolve the dinosaurs quickly. It was the Carians who gave the clue to Enki to accelerate the evolution of the hominids.

They revealed to him that it was not enough to mix a reptilian ovule and a hominid sperm, but he needed to mix many more characteristics of other extraterrestrial races. The Carians gave him their genes as well as the race of Intraterrestrials. Meanwhile, Enki also had a gene bank of the races he had collected. In total there were 23 genes from different races of the whole universe that were mixed in a great genetic cocktail. They also told Enki that man's semen should be implanted in a reptilian uterus. That is how the Homo sapiens was born, a being with the intelligence and sufficient strength to perform the tasks they needed: a perfect Lulu.

However, if this Lulu was created, where are the giants? Did they really exist?

To answer these questions, we have to resort to two theories: the first, tells us that these Lulus, were not fast nor even strong enough to build at the pace that the Reptilians required, so Enki was entrusted once more to take over the genetic modification, and his idea for this was that we reproduced faster, because he thought that having a very large workforce, they would finish the portal in a very short time, something that is not common in nature. This is the explanation that we humans are always in heat.

»He did this with a double sense, obviously in the eyes of Anu and the Anunnaki Council, this was for the workforce to grow more numerous, but in reality, Enki did it so that his creation would survive through time and would not be mere slaves. But this did not work. Being more numerous, men were actually not moving faster than what was required. Enki decided to create a being similar to Homo sapiens but bigger, stronger and faster. This is the first theory.

The second was: that these reptilian beings began to cross and have sex with Homo sapiens, human women. From this crossbreeding, appeared the giants we know, such as what explain many passages of the Bible in the Genesis…

The Extinction of Atlantis and Lemuria

The first human, the first Lulu, the first Homo sapiens that Enki created was called Adapa (according to the Sumerian Tablets). In Christian religion, it would be called Adan.

Later he created the first woman, Lilith (according to Sumerian tablets), the Biblical Eve. And these two human beings, by a decision of the Anunnaki Council, were taken to the mother ship. A very important fact to keep in mind is that the Anunnaki and the grey ones, but especially the first, physiologically did not adapt very well to the density of the Earth. They got suffocated quickly. After three to seven days on the surface, they began to feel discomfort. It is for this reason that the grey ones rebelled against such conditions and submission to this forced labor on the surface of the Earth.

The Reptilians decided to park their mother base in the orbit of the Earth. And they only went down to refuel, that is, for water.

Anu spent most of the time on the ship and rarely went down to Earth, while Enki, Enlil, and some other Reptilians did it.

Adapa and Lilith had a privileged treat from the Anunnaki since Anu and the Anunnaki Council really wanted the pure blood of these first Homo sapiens to prevail.

The plan was that the descendants of these were created through artificial matrices so that the purity of the blood would be one hundred percent. However, Enki at the first opportunity he had, confessed to Eva that they were free beings and that they could become like gods; that they could get to experience their emotions. That is when Eva (Lilith) knows the truth and convinces Adan (Adapa) to have sex.

Anu realized that they had disobeyed his orders and decides to punish them by returning them back to Earth, entrusting Enlil to watch over his ancestry to be the purest blood on Earth.

Enki, on the other hand, had already created women and men to begin to populate the Earth. This first race of Homo sapiens was very intelligent and had highly developed psychic abilities. Unlike us, they had more activated codons in their DNA. Of the 64, 32 were active, with which, they learned more quickly. But this was not what surprised the most the Reptilians. What surprised them the most of Homo sapiens was their ability to feel and express their feelings. Something that very few reptilian races had.

The plan continued their course and these Homo sapiens continued to be used as Lulu slaves to continue the works that the Igigi had left unfinished.

The reptilian Anunnaki commissioned the Igigi, the grey ones, to supervise the works. That is why they received the name of "Those who watch and observe" (according to Sumerian tablets).

The Anunnaki soon realized that when humans were exalted or suffering, when they expressed their feelings and emotions in a euphoric way, individually or as a group, they emanated subtle vibrations that were detected by the Anunnaki, and that caused them immense pleasure (See Chapter 2, to understand more).

Initially, the Anunnaki and the Igigi transmitted much of their knowledge in Engineering, Agriculture, Astronomy, and Construction to humans so that they could learn and perform their tasks more quickly.

But Enlil realized about the danger of humans not being any kind of beings, because apparently, they were too intelligent and could rebel at any moment, so he decided to communicate this problem to Anu. They decided to create a system of beliefs in which humans should worship their gods.

For this to be effective, Enlil began to manipulate them through fear, demonstrating miracles through technology that only the gods could do. It is at this point that they began to perform the sacrifices demanded by the gods to appease their anger.

Anu also strictly prohibited the Anunnaki to transmit the knowledge of technology or spirituality to human beings under very severe condemnations to anyone who dared to help them, even to death, to which Enki flatly opposed. He wanted his creation to be a free race, capable of evolving and developing self-awareness.

Enki was frustrated to see how his huge creation was being wasted on slaves performing heavy tasks, and despite that potential, they were also being manipulated so that they did not exploit the full potential they could reach. So, it occurred to him an idea for his creation to be able to develop. He told Anu that they should have a group of Lulus on another side, far from the Euphrates River, the first Anunnaki settlement, where all the created humans were concentrated, and who lived unnoticed by the watchful eyes of the Carians with the purpose of creating weapons and being prepared for some treachery or attack of the Intraterrestrials.

Anu agreed. But on a condition: Enki had to create a different race of Lulus, much stronger, and that they were disconnected more codons of their DNA to reduce their psychic capacity and their ability to procreate. Enki accepted. He created the second race of human beings, with black skin to resist the sun, and stronger physically, in return they lost their psychic abilities. They were employed as slaves for the arduous tasks that the Anunnaki had.

Upon finishing his new creation, Enki went to Mu, a continent that was located in the Pacific Ocean, on the supposed secret mission of building weapons. With all the freedom of the world in this continent, Enki created the third race of humans, physically very similar to those of the first race, with the same psychic abilities, but only different in stature; since this third race, which was named Lemurians, had an average height of 2 to 2.5 meters in height.

Enki knew very well that the Anunnaki were going to want to visit the place where he was creating weapons, so he decided to move to the Atlantic having finished creating the Lemurians. The Atlantis, a huge continent located in the Atlantic Ocean. There he created the fourth race of humans, which had a similar physical aspect to those of the first race, of the same size and with the same physical capacities. The only difference is that they had a dark complexion and were much more intelligent. This race was called the Atlanteans.

To these two new races, all reptilian Anunnaki knowledge was revealed. From the construction of buildings through stones to the channeling of energy through the chakras.

No wonder that after a hundred years of civilization, these two races had already created great civilizations. But the Atlanteans did create atomic weapons and weapons that threw rays through crystals, prisms, and quartz, unlike the Lemurians who did not have any weapons.

These two great civilizations had large maritime ships and ships that could sail the sky. That is why the Lemurians could explore what we all know today as South Africa, Madagascar, Sri Lanka, Sumatra, Indian Ocean, Australia, and New Zealand. On the other hand, the Atlanteans managed to explore almost all the oceans existing in the world.

In all this time, Enki was showing several times the weapons created to Anu. He told him that he was hiding them somewhere in the Atlantic continent, that when they had a sufficient number he would tell him to finish the mission.

Meanwhile, in the first Anunnaki settlement, the Igigi were already considered the lesser gods. Their supervision tasks were entrusted to the first human race created by Enki. The heavy construction work was entrusted to the black race, the second created human race.

Now, picking up the line of investigation (as mentioned in Chapter 4), that the giants were hybrid beings, in that same time, many reptilian beings had sexual relations with human women, creating so the giants and other various hybrids.

It is worth mentioning that not all reptilian and human children were giants. Some came out in their crosses of normal height. And these, obviously, were named as kings and they did not have to worry about working. At this point, the clever human women began to extract the most valuable information from these reptilian beings with whom they copulated, about the knowledge that they were forbidden to reveal to Homo Sapiens.

Enlil, intoxicated by ego for the devotion that humans had towards their reptilian gods, put on test to a man descendant of Adapa that he chose to test his faith to him. This man named Abraham in the Bible was put on test many times. In one of them, Enlil, orders him to be circumcised along with his offspring. This must be transmitted from generation to generation so that he would know who his chosen people were. That is how Enlil's plan to be the only god on planet Earth started.

After a while, Enlil found out that some reptilian beings had violated the order not to offer knowledge to humans. These beings are named in the Bible as "The Watchers", the famous fallen angels —do not confuse these beings with the Igigi, grey ones—. And to implant fear in humankind, Enlil chose Abraham's grandson, Enoch, to take him to his ship and show him the tortures practiced on these fallen angels for transmitting knowledge forbidden to humans. And entrusted him to transmit what he had seen for letting men and women know what awaited them if they broke the law again.

Twelve thousand years ago, approximately, Enlil decided to visit the Atlantic without notifying Enki. He was surprised by the advanced culture and technology this civilization had, apart from the weapons they had. Enlil went to his father, Anu and the Anunnaki council to inform them about Enki's treason. There, Enki admitted he put on test an improved human race to know how far they were able to get. He explained that his main mission was to create weapons and have them available for the Anunnaki Reptilians and that he had achieved that. In addition, he told them that the weapons were available for reptilian subjects, and he convinced them that this new breed could help them create new motherships and create new portals not only to communicate with Orion but also with other reptilian Anunnaki settlements.

Although Anu and the Anunnaki Council were not very convinced of this, at the end they gave their vote in favor, that this human race of Lulus would help them to create technology, but on the condition that they were watched by the Reptilians and that the weapons were transferred to the mother ship.

Faced with this decision, Enlil played his last card to destroy this advanced human race, since for him they were a danger, because they were not controlled or subdued like the human beings who were in the first settlement. He decided to give an order to one of his subjects to contact Intraterrestrials to inform them that the Anunnaki had created weapons to destroy them. In addition to tell them where these weapons were, and warn them to act fast, because the Anunnaki would soon transfer such weapons to the mothership to attack them.

The Intraterrestrial beings immediately notified the Carians and prepared for war. They sent an emissary to get in touch with Anu and inform him to abstain from that plan. When Anu received the emissary, he had no choice but to assume the creation of weapons, but he told them that in fact, these, were not to attack their allies, but were to take them to a reptilian base located in the Pleiades, that he did not want any war.

The Carians, on the other hand, also threatened Anu by telling him that, if they provoked a war, the Galactic Confederation would intervene to exterminate them or at least to expel them from the planet Earth.

Anu gave the same explanation to the Carians telling them not to misunderstand their intentions that he himself would order to destroy all those weapons.

The Intraterrestrials, on the other hand, had already discovered Mu and the Lemurians, and they also questioned the intention of creating such an advanced human civilization, to which Anu answered that he did not know the existence of this civilization.

The Carians also demanded the Anunnaki to destroy the portal they had created in the first settlement, to which Anu agreed.

Enlil, who already knew exactly what was going to happen, told Ziusudra, known as Noah in the Bible, who was the great-grandson of Enoch, to build a boat to save his lineage, since there was going to be a Universal Flood, and that the gods, Anu and Enlil, had decided it.

Anu gave the order to Enki to take the Carians and Intraterrestrials to the place of arms to supervise their disarmament. And another caravan of Intraterrestrials went to Lemuria and the first Anunnaki settlement to check that there were no more weapons.

Enlil had the mission to destroy the first portal created in the first settlement. Once the disarmament was finished, Enki realized that three nuclear weapons were missing, and he was questioned by the Intraterrestrials and the Carians about this.

Foreseeing what was going to happen, Enki sent a large part of the Atlanteans to take refuge in a boat and to sail to the sea. He did exactly the same with the Lemurians, putting them on a large ship.

Enlil, who stole these three weapons buried them close to human settlements: one in the Atlantic Ocean near Atlantis, another in the Persian Gulf near the first Anunnaki settlement, and another in the Pacific Ocean near Mu.

Once finished the boat of Ziusudra, Enlil activated these weapons causing three large tsunamis that caused the collapse of Atlantis, the disappearance almost completely of Mu, and the destruction of the first settlement next to the portal they had created.

The Universal Flood had begun with the annihilation of most of the human race and giant hybrids.

The Atlantean vessel was directed to America, the Lemurian vessel was directed to Asia, and the Ziuzudra ship to Europe, using the Black Sea…

The True Origin of the Moon

These civilizations being annihilated, the annoyed Carians told Anu that his race had violated one of the universal laws, for causing the extinction of a race. Anu answered them that the human race belonged to them because they had created it.

Enlil cleverly interrupted this discussion of Anu and the Carians by informing them that not all the human race had been extinguished. Since he had saved a handful of people who were on a small boat. In addition, there were survivors in the first settlement. Enki, who had been listening to all this conversation with the Carians, decided to keep quiet and say nothing about the Atlanteans and Lemurians that he had put safely on the boats.

The Carians questioned Enlil about why the humans were on that boat, they asked him if he already knew that these bombs were going to explode. To which Enlil replied that he had sent a group of Lulus on a boat to explore the area, which we now know as the border of Bulgaria and Romania since they had discovered a large gold deposit that he wanted to exploit. The Carians were not very convinced with Enlil's answer and they asked Anu why they had activated those three nuclear weapons. To which Anu, a bit calmer, told them that he did not know who had activated them, but had the suspicion of who they could have been, promising to carry out an investigation to get the responsible for all this to pay for their actions.

The Carians left the mother ship and went to what was left of the first settlement, accounting for ninety-three surviving humans, of which seven were hybrids (half human, half reptilian); no giants.

Once this was done, the Carians gave notice to the Galactic Confederation about the violation of the law that, in their judgment, the Anunnaki had made.

The Earth was in its lowest duration recorded in its history, all because of the explosion of these nuclear weapons.

The Intraterrestrials baffled and surprised by the destructive capacity of the Anunnaki, saw the perfect opportunity to attack and destroy them as they represented a great threat to them. However, they had a great disadvantage: despite having a large number of warriors, they did not have enough technology to reach the mother ship from Earth. His plan was to hijack the transporter ships to get to the mother ship and from there to destroy it from the inside. However, foreseeing all this, Anu approached to the intraterrestrial leaders and made a deal with them: the Anunnaki were going to teach the Intraterrestrials how to build weapons and sophisticated means of transport, as well as give them a good number of humans to help them in their manufacture.

However, foreseeing all this, Anu approached to the intraterrestrial leaders and made a deal with them: the Anunnaki were going to teach the Intraterrestrials how to build weapons and sophisticated means of transport, as well as give them a good number of humans to help them in their manufacture.

The Intraterrestrials were in a great dilemma, because on the one hand, if they accepted the deal, their civilization would make a huge, evolutionary, and technological leap. But on the other hand, they were afraid that the Anunnaki would recreate new humans, Lulus, and begin to make weapons again, being a threat again for them.

In the end, the Intraterrestrials accepted this deal, but on two more conditions: the first was that no Anunnaki would enter the Abzu without their consent, and the second is that they also taught them the secrets of the genetic manipulation so that they could master it. Anu had no other option but to accept the terms of the Intraterrestrials in exchange for not attacking their race.

While this negotiation was being carried out, Anu ordered Enki the construction of seven hundred humans to repopulate the Earth. But this time, these humans would have only twenty active codons out of the sixty-four available in their DNA. This would be the fifth race of humans but no longer as intelligent as their ancestors nor with their psychic powers. In other words, he ordered to create the perfect Lulu.

Enki had no other choice and he accepted since he was being watched at all times by the Anunnaki on Anu's request since he did not want him to recreate humans as intellectually powerful as he had done. The only hope of Enki was the Atlanteans and Lemurians that he had managed to rescue.

It is compelling to make a comment about Enki. It is not that he felt precisely love or any other kind of feeling benevolent to humans since reptilian beings did not have that kind of feelings because of their physiological nature. He felt pride and appreciation for his creation and did not want anyone to destroy it. He was not good, but he was the least bad of all the Anunnaki. He was supporting us to know how far we could get. He saw us as we currently see our pets.

Before anything, he was an Anunnaki, and he would always watch first for the benefits of his race rather than for us humans.

Having clarified this, we have that the Galactic Confederation, upon receiving the news of what had happened on Earth, asked the Draconians, the supreme race of all Reptilians, an explanation of what had happened. For if the Anunnaki Reptilians had destroyed a whole race consciously, it implied a violation of one of the universal laws.

The Draconians, surprised by this news, knew very well that if the Anunnaki had committed such an atrocity, the Kadistu could intervene and they would end up paying a very high price for this. They sent their emissaries to Anu demanding that he showed up in Orion so that he could give an explanation of this serious accusation.

When the Draconians came for Anu, he asked Enki to accompany him along with three other members of the Anunnaki Council and he commissioned the leadership of the Earth to Enlil.

Enki, did not feel supported by other Anunnaki, so he commanded the only one he trusted, his son Marduk, to watch over Enlil and not allow him to destroy humans. In addition, he entrusted him with the supervision of the remaining Lulus, since they had only created two hundred of the seven hundred that Anu had requested.

When arriving in Orion, Anu, head of the Anunnaki caravan, belonging to the Usumgal race, was interviewed by the Draconian leaders demanding an explanation of why they were not noticed of the planet found and the race of Lulus. Anu told them that he tried to build a portal to be able to communicate with all the Reptilian Alliance, but he could not do it. He also confirmed them that the Galactic Confederation was already aware of what they were doing and that even the Carians kept an eye on them.

The Draconians realized that if the rest of the Reptilian Alliance, of which they were also members, were not warned about this Anunnaki settlement, the rest of the reptilian races would come into conflict and would be jealous and desiring to take control of the new planet.

At last, Anu also confessed that the human race had the capacity to feed them with their subtle energy, provoking them an indescribable sensation.

The Draconians, subduing and threatening Anu, told him that from that moment on, the planet Uras (which is how they called the Earth) belonged to them along with the human Lulus. In addition, he was strictly forbidden to inform his Usumgal race and the Reptilian Alliance about this planet.

Anu, fearing for his life, accepted all the conditions of the Draconians, becoming from that moment on their slave.

Seven draconian days after having made the deal with the Draconians, the Galactic Confederation called to a first meeting to deal with the issue of the planet Uras, Earth, and the Lulus. The Galactic Confederation Council (GCC) met in the extinct planet Mulge, and to the venue arrived Anu and Enki, next to the three members of the Anunnaki Council.

The first question to Anu was why they did not inform the rest of the genetic manipulation they did to an inferior race, found on a planet outside their jurisdiction. Anu answered that the communication systems of his ship were rendered useless and that on the planet Uras, Earth, there were not the necessary elements to repair them, but what he was trying to do was to create a portal to notify the Reptilian Alliance of their position, but in the end, they were not successful either.

The Carians, members of the Galactic Confederation, told him that this was inadmissible. Making the decision to alter and accelerate the evolution of a race, interrupting it from its natural course was against the laws set forth in the Intergovernmental Treaties. The Draconians, who were the representatives of the reptilian race in the Galactic Confederation, interrupted their fellow Carians and told them that their emissaries had helped create the Lulus, and questioned why when they were notified that a reptilian race had manipulated an inferior race on the planet Uras, they did not decide to notify the Draconians, but on the contrary, they decided to be silent and send emissaries behind their backs without asking for authorization. That was also a violation of the Intergovernmental Treaties.

The angry Carians answered that they only wanted to be sure and corroborate the information they received. And if they decided not to inform the Confederation, it was because they had more important problems to attend to because of the war that the Reptilians had caused.

After a long discussion, they came to the first agreement, that is: not to inform the Reptilian Alliance, and in general, to all the reptilian races of the birth of this new self-aware species of human Lulus and that inhabited the planet Uras, Earth, because if they did it, it could create a conflict in the interests of the rest of the reptilian races.

The Draconians voted in favor of this first agreement since it was very convenient for them to convert the Earth into one more of their farms, so they swore to respect this agreement with the rest of the Confederation.

The next question they asked Anu was why they had decided to accelerate the evolution of an inferior race, and his answer was that they needed a greater force of labor to create the portal. They questioned him if that was the only reason, and he answered yes.

This answer did not convince the GCC, so they went to the crucial point of the meeting of that Assembly of why they had decided to activate three atomic bombs to exterminate the Lulus. Anu answered very calmly that they had not activated those bombs to exterminate anyone. They had just had a problem with a Usumgal Anunnaki named Pazuzu who had rebelled against them and tried to steal the Fate Tablets and, not achieving that, he stole three atomic weapons and activated them in revenge.

Anu, also clarified that Pazuzu had been captured and subjected to the death penalty, as the reptilian laws said. Anu finally added that the human race had not been completely exterminated, that there were many survivors, and that, at that time, the repopulation of the Earth was taking place.

It should be noted that the Tablets of Destiny or Me Tablets, were a type of device, a kind of microchip very important in the Anunnaki life since they were the key to activate destructive weaponry, control spacecraft or direct any Anunnaki technological device. In addition, Me Tablets, contained laws and decrees to govern, the most lethal war strategies, weapons instructions, defensive tools to be invulnerable, etc.

These Tablets of Destiny were always used by Anu, Enki, and Enlil; the last one had used them to create terror in humans, subdue them and manipulate them through fear, and so, had forced them to perform human sacrifices.

This microchip, or Me Tablet, was represented in the old engravings as if it were a clock, carrying them on their wrists.

Resuming the Assembly of the Galactic Confederation, the Insectoids questioned Anu about the reason of constructing weapons. Anu gave many explanations, but all without any sense. After a great debate, they came to a conclusion: that the Anunnaki, while repopulating the Earth, should be watched constantly, in addition to that they had to help the Earth to raise its vibrational level. Therefore, the Pleiadeans proposed to implant a spy satellite with which they could watch the Anunnaki and emit vibrations to help the Earth.

Although at first the Draconians did not agree with the idea, in the end, they accepted it, on the condition that any member of the Galactic Confederation had access to the information broadcasted by this satellite. The Draconians saw an opportunity with this satellite to keep Anu under surveillance since they did not trust him very much.

The Assembly of that day was closed with this agreement and was convened that within a draconian month there would be another Assembly to decide the fate of the Intraterrestrials and humans.

That it was how they decided that the Moon would be implanted in the Earth, it was taken from a planet located in the Pleiades and transferred to the orbit of the Earth. This mission was entrusted to the Pleiadeans and was started about eleven thousand years ago.

This is why the Atlanteans and Lemurians are known as the Pre-lunar Civilizations.

This agreement to implant the Moon on Earth had a secret goal of the Galactic Confederation against the Reptilians.

While this Assembly was being held, on Earth it had already been three hundred and seventy-one years since Anu had left, since each draconian day equals fifty-three terrestrial years. And in all this time, Marduk started to fall into the temptation offered by humans and the elixir that they emanated when they felt fear, obviously influenced by their uncle, Enlil...

The Backward Evolution of Humankind

While Anu was at that Assembly, Enlil continued with his supreme mandate. He decided to resume mining works focusing on the extraction of gold.

By that time, an Anunnaki explorer had already discovered large gold deposits in what we now know as Africa. During almost four hundred years of absence, of Anu and Enki, the fifth race of human Lulus was used almost completely for works of extraction of gold and in the construction of a road to transport them towards the first Anunnaki settlement located in Iraq.

The more fortunate Lulus were used in this settlement for the construction of large temples where human sacrifices were performed in honor of their reptilian gods.

During Enlil's leadership, knowledge was not transmitted to humans. The only thing that was taught to them was the same belief system that their ancestors had before the Great Flood. This system created by Anu and Enlil was very simple: the humans were created by the Anunnaki gods and they could destroy them if they did not follow their mandates. That is why they had to make human sacrifices to appease their anger.

They were also taught that there were hierarchies within their gods, the supreme god was Anu, then Enki and Enlil, from there, Ninhursag, and so until reaching the minor gods who were the Igigi, the grey ones. In the last step were the hybrids, who were the priests, who had the privilege of not working and were leaders of the humans.

To this belief system, Enlil added the Universal Flood that was taught to the Lulus, as a lesson the gods had given to humans for not obeying their orders.

It should be noted that Enlil prohibited, under pain of death, the pregnancy of Anunnaki females that were caused by human Lulus, since he qualified as an abomination to the children that resulted from this copulation: The Giants.

With this decision, the Giants went extinct of our history. However, what about the Anunnaki males? They could copulate and even impregnate human females. Thing that was not forbidden, but that was not very frequent.

Marduk, on the other hand, finished the seven hundred humans and delivered one hundred and thirty of them to the Intraterrestrials to use them as their slaves. As they had agreed. Also, two Anunnaki geneticists went to the Abzu to teach them the secrets of genetic manipulation. Although obviously, Marduk ordered them to only teach them the basics.

The five hundred and seventy remaining humans were handed over to Enlil and distributed in the first settlement and in different mines of Africa and the Middle East for the mining works.

Marduk developed a close relationship with Enlil, just as his father, Enki, had ordered him. Enlil suspected this sudden approach of his nephew, for which, he started to show him the adorable and irresistible sensation that produced the subtle energies generated by humans when they suffered or were sacrificed.

Marduk, little by little, started to fall into the fascination of human emotions, to the point of almost becoming addicted to it. His favorite sensation was that children emanated just before being sacrificed. In general, it was the sensation most requested by the reptilian Anunnaki.

Marduk realized that Enlil had ordered the creation of numerous temples in honor of him and questioned him why he had done it. He was asked if he wanted to be more revered than his father, Anu. Enlil replied definitely not. They were simply the first of many temples that he would send to build, honoring the main gods. And he informed that the next five temples were to be built in honor of him. Something very convenient for this god addict to human sacrifices.

It should be noted that human sacrifices were made every five or six months, that is, twice a year, however, it was a very short period in relation to the Draconians time that was the time with which the Anunnaki were synchronized.

The gold that was mined was transformed, in its majority, into monoatomic gold, with which the less evolved Anunnaki and older ones could heal, prevent from getting old, and remain more time on the surface of the Earth.

With this Enlil managed to control almost fifty percent of their Anunnaki companions, who were of third, fourth and fifth grade, offering them monoatomic gold in exchange for absolute loyalty. Many Anunnaki reptiles became addicted to this gold. They began to rejuvenate in exchange for losing their psychical abilities, becoming totally controllable.

Marduk was worried because of this since many of his companions were completely zombified (they became addicted to monoatomic gold) and to the service of Enlil. But in reality, Marduk was beginning to feel great envy for Enlil, since he wanted to have as many humans controlled and in service to him as possible. So, he created a plan to take the power of Enlil and Anu and to remain as the only king and god of the Earth.

Meanwhile, the twelve humans who boarded from the Atlantic, in these three hundred and seventy years had already formed several tribes, had discovered the fire and had begun to create basic tools. All this thanks to the previous knowledge that they had from their ancestors, of their ancient civilization; however, not having the technology, they had got stuck. The population was approximately of ten thousand and five hundred people spread over America.

Something similar occurred with the fifteen humans who came to Asia from Mu, they lived much like the Atlanteans who lived in America. They had already discovered the fire, the wheel, basic tools, and weapons to hunt animals. The only difference was the number of inhabitants since in Asia the population reached the twenty-five thousand inhabitants. This is due to the great knowledge that the Lemurians had in medicine and that was transmitted from generation to generation.

Those who practically returned to the Stone Age were the twenty-seven humans who had arrived in Europe, in the boat of Ziusudra, the biblical Noah, since being abandoned by the gods, it took them much effort to start from scratch. The population was about six hundred and fifty people, all nomadic, and dedicated exclusively to hunting.

It should be emphasized that Ziusudra and his direct descendants were not among them since they were transferred by Enlil to the first Anunnaki settlement shortly after Anu and Enki left. There, they were treated like slaves, but always following the orders of Enlil, and being circumcised generation after generation so that their god could distinguish them from the rest.

When, finally, Anu and Enki returned to the mother ship, about eleven thousand years ago, they were surprised to see many Anunnaki rejuvenated and acting like zombies. Enlil explained to them that it was because of monoatomic gold, with which they could stand longer on the surface of the Earth.

The Anunnaki behaved as if they were at a continuous party. They did not work, many consumed gold, while others were fed with the energy emanating from humans. Everything was happiness for these beings.

Anu, having seen all this, exploded in anger against Enlil screaming that he had disappointed him, since they were in a critical situation and he had organized a great party in his absence. Enlil restrained his anger and only nodded to all the claims of his father.

Anu banned the creation of monoatomic gold and commended to Marduk to supervise the closure of the mining operation. He told everyone to prepare for the arrival of the Pleiadeans. Enki was disappointed to see that Marduk had failed in the assignment he had given to him. And not only that but also noted that Marduk had changed a lot since when he questioned him why he had not tried to stop Enlil in his trait to the Lulus, he answered that humans were simply food for him and that they had no right to possess knowledge. Marduk added: «Father, you have no right to demand that we change the trait to the Lulus since you benefit and nourish yourself with their suffering». Enki answered that he was right that he fed on humans because it was inevitable not to feel pleasure with his emotions detached, but that did not mean that he wanted to have them as mere slaves.

Marduk turned around and came back to Earth to fulfill the task that Anu had given him. Enki realized that Marduk had succumbed to the pleasure humans generated. Also, he realized that he was alone in his pursuit of the evolution of his creation: humans.

Shortly after, the Pleiadeans arrived in the satellite extracted from the Pleiades, that is, on the Moon. And it took fifty-eight Earth years to calibrate it with the same frequency as the Earth and place it in the same cycle of rotation so that only one face was always visible.

Meanwhile, the Carians had arrived on Earth and were surprised that the humans had regressed with respect to their antediluvian predecessors. That is, they did not have the same level of knowledge as their ancestors, so, they decided to talk to Anu, and they told him that before a decision was made about the future of humans, they, the Anunnaki, had the duty to put them at the same level of knowledge they had before causing the explosions. Anu, after a small debate, agreed. He commanded that the Lulus should be trained in basic matters such as Engineering, Astronomy, Agriculture, Construction, etc. so that they could start to evolve.

Enki offered himself to train humans, but Anu firmly opposed. Enki was being watched all the time by two Anunnaki since they arrived on Earth. It is obvious that Anu did not want his children to spoil their plans again.

The Carians went to the Abzu to visit the Intraterrestrials to explain to them the decision that the Galactic Confederation had taken to implant the Moon on Earth. And, in addition, that they needed their help since they needed to stimulate certain land points to synchronize them with the emissions of the Moon.

The Intraterrestrials were not convinced of this decision, but due to the respect they had for their creators, the Carians, they accepted. Then, the Carians and the Intraterrestrials, from Earth, and the Pleiadeans from the Moonbase, managed to put to work this artificial satellite to try to raise the vibration frequency of the Earth.

The Moon was placed strategically in a position where any point of the Earth could be observed since it not only emitted vibrations but also served as a spy satellite, where they could see everything that happened there.

The Pleiadeans were amazed at the emotional capacity of the humans and their short life, since for them, fifty or eighty Earth years, would be two Pleiadean days. They also lamented the conditions of slavery under which Reptilians had humans, feeding on their lives.

It is obvious that the Pleiadeans were going to vote in favor of the liberation of humankind in the next Assembly.

The Pleiadeans also had a hidden purpose with the implantation of the Moon that was entrusted by the Galactic Confederation and would depend only on the decision made in the next Assembly, the future of humans, to start it or not.

The vibrations of the Moon were captured by the Earth in its great majority through the oceans. That is the reason why the Moon has great influence on ocean tides.

After the implantation of the Moon, the Carians departed from Earth and prepared for the next Assembly. A group of Pleiadeans remained in control of the Moon's base, while the great majority who had arrived to implant the Moon returned to the Pleiades.

The implantation of the Moon and the constant vigilance of the Pleiadeans delayed Enlil and Marduk's plans to gain control of the Earth.

Fifteen hundred years on Earth passed, which is equivalent to a draconian month, where the Lulus had learned how to build houses, how to harvest land, how to measure time, basic Astronomy, etc. That is, their knowledge and evolutionary conditions had increased. However, they were still being used as slaves and frightened by their reptilian gods, who were offered human sacrifices twice a year, something that the Pleiadeans disliked observing from the Moon.

Meanwhile, Enlil continued to traffic monoatomic gold to his Anunnaki folks, obviously on his father's back, Anu, which helped him continue gaining supporters.

By this time, the Pleiadeans already knew about the existence of the humans who were in America and Asia, however, they decided not to say anything to the Anunnaki, since it seemed that they had not realized that they were there, because they were not submitted.

Just before Anu, Enki, Enlil, and Marduk, together with a caravan of Anunnaki departed to the Assembly of the Galactic Confederation, the Draconians came to the mother ship, who asked Anu for a small demonstration of what humans could give them. Anu gave the order to the Igigi to prepare a great human sacrifice in honor of their guests. The Draconians were satisfied with the taste of human emotions, although disappointed of the size of the Earth since they considered it too small.

The Draconians told Anu, that Uras, the Earth, would sooner or later become their farm. It did not matter the resolution of the Galactic Confederation. The Earth had to be harvested.

Then, Anu along with his caravan and the Draconians went to the planet Mulge to attend the Assembly where the future of humans would be decided.

That would be the last Assembly held on that planet...

The Extinction of Planet Mulge

The Assembly began with the claims of the Anunnaki Reptilians in the voice of their leader, Anu, who said that the human race lacked sufficient intellect and consciousness to be able to create a civilization that was in harmony with the nature and care of the planet Uras, the Earth. Therefore, they had to be watched by a superior species, and as they had created and accelerated our evolution, they were the best suited to guide us. Otherwise, he warned that humans would destroy the Earth, so they could not let them be a free species.

Suddenly Enki spoke before Anu's astonished eyes and said that it was a lie. That the humans had managed to create two civilizations with free energy and in harmony with the nature of the Earth (obviously remembering the Lemurians and Atlanteans) and said that the Carians could confirm that because they had contemplated these two great civilizations.

Enlil started to shout at Enki accusing him of betrayal, being echoed by the small caravan of Reptilians, including Marduk. The Draconians interrupted the screams and spoke. They asked Enki how the human Lulus had managed to create such a great civilization in such a short time and who had given them that knowledge. To which Enki answered that he had transmitted their knowledge to some of them and others had discovered it by themselves. «That is why they need some guides», the Draconians replied, « Anu is right. The human Lulus must be guided so that they can evolve, and what better guides than us?»

The Pleiadeans interrupted the Draconians and questioned whether the Anunnaki wanted to be the humans' guides or simply wanted to harvest them to take advantage of them by stealing their subtle energies since they had seen it from the Moon.

The debate turned on at this point and continued for almost two hours, focusing on three main ideas: the first idea was that the Anunnaki Reptilians should be the only guides of humankind to help them evolve, this idea was supported by the Draconians and Insectoids, since these two races had made an arrangement before this Assembly; the second idea was that humans should be guided, but not only by Reptilians, other species could intervene, after all, human Lulus had in their DNA parts of many other extraterrestrial species, this idea was supported by Vegans, Pleiadeans, and Felines; the third main idea was to let the human species free and that they were the owners of their destiny, either to evolve or to become extinct without the help or intervention of another extraterrestrial race, this idea was supported by the Carians and Arcturians.

Enki felt frustrated since part of him wanted humans to be free, but another part wanted to continue with them, guiding them and creating different races. But deep down he knew that none of the three ideas discussed was going to help him or his creation.

By failing to reach a unanimous or majority's agreement of at least five different species, the GCC decided to consult the Kadistu, as the statutes of the Galactic Confederation indicate.

The Draconians were not at all in agreement with this, since the Kadistu, the life planners, could be very unpredictable, however, the decision they made had to be fulfilled unquestionably. So, they tried to convince the GCC to hold another meeting a later date so that all extraterrestrial species would think about it calmly and, perhaps, a decision would be reached without disturbing the Kadistu. The GCC responded with a resounding NO.

In addition, the GCC asked them about the accusations made by the Pleiadeans and the Carians, about their trait to the Lulus, and that they used them as mere resources for their benefit. Then, the GCC called for a vote to know who was in favor of the Anunnaki leaving the Earth.

The Draconians abruptly interrupted before this vote was done and told the GCC that this was not possible until the Kadistu made a decision, since they did not know if the decision could be that the Anunnaki would be the guides of the humans, something that the Draconians did not know what was going to happen, but they took it as an excuse. So they were not going to retire from Uras until the Kadistu gave their verdict.

The Galactic Confederation accepted since they did not really believe that the Kadistu would make the decision that the Anunnaki should be the guides of the humans. Then it was only a matter of time that they left the Earth. And he told the Anunnaki that they had to fix their mistake, since the Lulus had lost thousands of terrestrial years of evolution, and that, in human parameters, was a lot of time. So they ordered to transmit the necessary knowledge so that humans could create a civilization, and they could corroborate if what Enki said was true.

Anu replied that he had already passed on much knowledge to humans, but they were not capable of creating a civilization. The Galactic Confederation then decided to call for a vote to know who was in favor of transmitting only the necessary knowledge to the Lulus to begin their evolution.

Five species agreed on that, and the GCC gave Enki this task. And entrusted the Pleiadeans the supervision from the Moon.

Enki was happy, he was finally able to help his creation. The Reptilians and Draconians had lost a battle, but not the war. Before the Assembly was over, the Pleiadeans alerted the Galactic Confederation of a large asteroid that had been discovered near Jupiter's orbit and was traveling at great speed to the planet Mulge, and that, according to their calculations, there was a ninety percent probability of impact with this planet in approximately thirty Earth months. So the Confederation entrusted the Pleiadeans the destruction of this asteroid once it crossed Jupiter's orbit.

Mulge was an inhospitable planet, located between Mars and Jupiter, in which, the Galactic Confederation installed a base to exploit their resources. And they wanted to create a gigantic headquarters, which would guard all the problems that arose in the Milky Way. That is why the assemblies were held on this big planet.

When the decision to create this headquarters was made, the Draconians did not agree so upon hearing the news about that asteroid going to Mulge, they decided to take revenge.

The Assembly finished and the Anunnaki returned to Earth accompanied by a group of Carians. Before they left, the Draconians told Anu to obey all the orders of the Carians until they knew the resolution of the Kadistu.

The Draconians, later, met in Orion with the Insectoids, and there they planned how to prevent the Pleiadeans from destroying the asteroid that had 15.700 kilometers of radius —much larger than the planet Earth— so that it would impact the planet Mulge, which had about sixty-five thousand kilometers of radius. Undoubtedly, this would lead to the destruction of this planet.

And so it was. The Draconians ordered the Insectoids to put artifacts on the asteroid, which, when activated would create an electromagnetic field around it so that the radars and digital telescopes of the Galactic Confederation and the Pleiadeans would not detect it.

Once this was done, the Draconians waited for the Pleiadeans to destroy this asteroid. Twenty-four terrestrial months had passed after the Assembly in Mulge when three Pleiadean ships loaded with nuclear weapons left their bases in the Pleiades and headed towards the asteroid to destroy it. Once they approached the asteroid, they were ambushed by five draconian ships which destroyed the Pleiadean ships in a few minutes. And just after having destroyed them, they activated the artifacts to create the electromagnetic field around the asteroid and hide it from the radars and digital telescopes of the Pleiadeans and the Galactic Confederation, which, at that moment was in Sirius.

All of them celebrated the destruction of this asteroid, the Pleiadeans informed the Confederation that the operation had been a success. Although they had lost communication with the three ships that destroyed the asteroid. So they told them they would send a scout ship to go to the place to investigate.

The Galactic Confederation also told the Pleiadeans that they had lost communication with Mulge and that this was surely due to the great explosion caused by nuclear weapons.

At the same time that the Draconians destroyed the Pleiadean ships, the Insectoids disabled all communications of the planet Mulge.

Cheating had been a success. The Draconians plan worked out to perfection. The scout ship that had been sent to investigate the three ships that were sent to destroy the asteroid, was also ambushed and destroyed by the Draconians.

When the Pleiadeans lost communication with the scout ship, they began to suspect that something was wrong. So, they decided to give notice to the Galactic Confederation. And when they realized that the asteroid had not been destroyed it was too late. The asteroid impacted the planet Mulge approximately 9.500 years ago, causing it to start fragmenting into pieces and these were launched to space. One of these pieces impacted on Mulge's moon, it completely removed it from its natural orbit and placed it in a new orbit, right between Mercury and the Earth.

This Moon became then as what we know today as the planet Venus. And the millions of pieces that remained of the planet Mulge became what we know today as the Asteroid Belt.

In this way, the dream of the Galactic Confederation to build a base in the Milky Way had ended. The Carians, the Pleiadeans, and the Arcturians suspected that the sabotage to destroy the great asteroid had been the work of the Draconians, though they did not have enough evidence to accuse them.

Almost eighteen hundred Earth years were left before the next meeting of the Grand Council of the Galactic Confederation with the Kadistu where the destiny of humankind would be completely defined…

The Final Decision of the Kadistu

After finishing the Assembly of the Galactic Confederation, a group of Carians came to Earth with the Anunnaki commanded by Anu.

The task of the Carians was to transmit their knowledge so that the Lulu humans began to evolve, as they had agreed at the Assembly. However, shortly after the Carians began with this arduous task, they found out that Mulge had been destroyed by the asteroid that the Pleiadeans were to disintegrate, so they began to suspect that something was not right. They decided to return to their planet located in Orion to investigate what was happening, leaving in Uras, the Earth, just four emissaries to transmit their knowledge to humans.

Before the return of the Carians to their planet, Anu saw the perfect opportunity to completely stop the plan to teach humans to look after themselves alone, for which, he entrusted Enlil to tell all the Anunnaki not to help in this task, but in a discreet way. Enlil gave notice to all his followers to do so.

During the time of waiting for the interview with the Kadistu, on Earth, Enlil and Marduk were frustrated and desperately worried about their plans not being carried out. The two had to wait for the Kadistu's verdict.

Something similar happened to Enki because he felt that his creation was being wasted and he could not help it since he was constantly being watched by the Anunnaki who were faithful to Anu.

On one occasion, he managed to get away from his watchers and take advantage of it to see how much the Atlanteans that were in America and the Lemurians who were in Asia had evolved, and he was surprised to see that, while the Atlanteans in America had evolved very little in all this time, their population was increasing; however, the Lemurians who had developed in technology, hunting and gathering had their population on a decline. So he decided to investigate it and discovered that the Lemurians were dying because of a rare disease and that it was spreading rapidly among all of them. Due to the short time he had, he could not investigate more of this disease and how it had originated. He began to take DNA samples from Lemurians, healthy and sick and asked for support from Intraterrestrials since his laboratory was closed by Anu's orders. In addition, he was forbidden to experiment with humans since the creation of the fifth race. For this reason, he asked for help from the Intraterrestrials, because he knew that they were the only ones who were carrying out genetic experiments on the Abzu.

When he arrived with them, he was surprised to see that they had already created in the laboratory several species of animals and when asked what they were going to do with them, they answered that they were going to be released on the surface of the Earth. That is, they were increasing the diversity of life on Earth.

Enki asked the Intraterrestrials to help him detect the rare disease that was killing the Lemurians. The Intraterrestrials refused because they did not know anything about human physiology, and what they had studied about it was very little.

After a long negotiation, the Intraterrestrials accepted the samples from the Lemurians and told Enki that they were going to do everything they could. Enki gave them the samples and went back to his mother ship since he had been absent longer than he could.

Seventy Earth years later, Enki escaped again and went to the Abzu to see the advances of the Intraterrestrials. There they showed Enki a new human race, created with Lemurian DNA and human DNA that the Intraterrestrials had in the Abzu. They explained that this new breed had been improved in their immune system and that they were immune to the disease that was killing them.

Enki at first was upset because by mixing these two types of DNA, this new hybrid race had lost the codons that it had activated, leaving in it only twenty. This caused them to decrease their stature considerably. Enki, annoyed, told them that he had asked them to investigate the disease, not to create a new race, to which they responded that they were not experts in human physiology and that had been their solution. However, if he wanted, they could destroy the ten humans they had created genetically.

Enki seeing that he had no other option, calmed down and kindly requested them to create forty men and forty more women and put them on the surface of the Earth. It was born, then, the sixth and last race of humans, with a yellow complexion, slanted eyes, and an improved immunological system. Enki released the eighty humans in Asia, next to the Lemurians, it should be mentioned, and they had already lost sixty percent of their population.

Therefore, the population remained distributed on Earth as follows: seventy percent was in the first settlement, located in what we know today as Iraq; eight percent were made up of slaves who were left in the African zone and who did not return to the first settlement; twelve percent were the Atlanteans that were in America; five percent were the Lemurians who were in Asia; and the remaining five percent were the humans who arrived on Ziusudra's boat and who were not returned to the first settlement because they were not the Chosen People.

During almost two thousand terrestrial years of waiting for the decision of the Kadistu, the humans did not manage to evolve in almost anything. The Carians basically taught them to teach them advanced mathematics, but due to the constant obstacles that the Anunnaki put, this was very complicated. Humans were not even near creating a civilization on their own.

The date arrived. Eighteen hundred Earth years had passed after the last Assembly of the Galactic Confederation and the leaders of the Great GCC were ready to speak with the Kadistu. This meeting was held in the Pleiades, one of the great venues of the Galactic Confederation.

The Great GCC communicated with the Kadistu through an extra artifact made of crystal, since the Kadistu were in the fifth dimension. And it is very unpleasant for them to endure the enormous density that exists in the third and fourth dimension, for which they prefer to communicate through this device.

These meetings with the Kadistu were held once each Pleiadean year, which is equivalent to one draconian year and a half, which is the same to twenty- nine thousand and forty-four terrestrial years. And there were discussed all the problems that existed in the galaxy. And for which, the GCC needed a guide or help to solve them.

In this last meeting, among many other topics, came out the destiny of humankind. The GCC explained to the Kadistu that humans were a new conscious species in the universe and that they had not agreed on whether to guide them or let them forge their destiny, so they needed their help to make the decision.

The Kadistu answered that being humans a conscious species, they had the right to make their own decisions and to forge their own destiny, whether it was evolving or becoming extinct. And if it was a race that was worth keeping, they had to prove it.

So they dictated a law: that all extraterrestrial races should respect the free will of humans; and made it clear that if humans wanted to be guided by other superior races, so it was going to be. And if they did not want it, they should also respect it.

They also made clear that the higher extraterrestrial races could only intervene if humans put the life of planet Earth at risk. Otherwise, they had to respect the free will of humankind.

That is how the fate of humans was sentenced to free will 7.700 years ago. Something that the Draconians celebrated greatly since they were skilled manipulators and knew that human Lulus were manageable.

The Pleiadeans and Carians were not very satisfied with this resolution of the Kadistu since they considered that humankind was not sufficiently conscious and had been manipulated since its creation to let them take their destiny into their hands. However, they had to abide by this decision.

The Draconians informed the Anunnaki of the decision made by the Kadistu and began to give precise orders to Anu to start forming the human farm they wanted.

The Carians, for their part, decided to take advantage of this resolution of the Kadistu and decided to send a group of 150 Carians to begin transmitting the basic knowledge to humankind so that they could begin their evolution. Something that the Anunnaki could no longer avoid since humans were the ones who had to decide if they wanted to be taught or not.

The Arcturians who were aware of the whole human problem, Lulus, but who had nevertheless remained aloof, decided to take advantage of the Kadistu's sentence to send a caravan of twenty emissaries to planet Earth and so on to be able to study humans better. This caravan was amazed to see the potential that humans had and the ability to feel and express feelings. A great number of these Arcturians emissaries succumbed to the pleasures that humans gave to detach the subtle energies and the taste of their blood, which, basically, focused on humans who were practically abandoned in Africa and they were dedicated to guiding them in exchange for them feeding them.

Their favorite dish always were the children, from which they sucked all the blood of the body.

The Pleiadeans, on the other hand, had a secret plan to drive the Anunnaki out of the Earth but decided not to carry it out until seeing how things went on Earth to determine if they were going to put it to action or not.

Enki, upon learning of the resolution of the Kadistu, decided to help the Carians to pass on their knowledge to the humans who were in the first settlement since his idea was to let the Atlanteans and Lemurians free to see how they evolved by themselves. Something that did not last for a long time.

Anu could not prevent Enki from helping the Carians since he had to respect the free will of humankind. However, he sent two of his emissaries to have Enki under surveillance at all times and inform him of all his movements.

So, after two thousand years after the resolution of the Kadistu, humankind had made the greatest evolutionary leap in its history. The Sumerian civilization had been born.

Despite the great technological advances and knowledge that humans had achieved, they still lived fearful of their gods and they continued to offer sacrifices.

While this civilization was born, Enlil and Marduk, each for their part, were waiting for the right moment to take control of the Earth…

The Expulsion of the Anunnaki from Uras, Earth

Despite being Sumerians the first civilization in human history — approximately five thousand years ago— and despite their great evolutionary leap, these were still being dominated by the Anunnaki, through their vassal hybrids.

These hybrids were on the cusp of its social system, were the Supreme rulers and considered demigods for having Anunnaki blood.

They were also afraid of them since they considered them people with superhuman and immortal powers.

Religion helped a lot to have the Sumerians under control, as it inculcated them a fear rooted in all their gods, and therefore, they should give them sacrifices each certain time.

Anu ordered to write Anunnaki history and how we had been created to root more religion among the Sumerians to make them, the Anunnaki, be supreme gods, and so their story would be preserved for posterity. So they began to write the Sumerian clay tablets.

Many of the texts were narrated to human scribes by Anu himself. And many other texts were narrated by various Anunnaki gods as Inanna, Enlil, Ninhursag, etc.

It is worth mentioning, that most of the stories written in the Sumerian tablets were deliberately exaggerated by these gods, to denote their power.

The Sumerians used highly advanced technology, inherited by the gods with which could create great temples and buildings as the Ziggurat. However, they did not understand how the technology worked, that is, they knew how to use it but they did not understand its functioning.

So, together Enki and the Carians began to teach the Sumerians science, as advanced mathematics, physics, chemistry, etc... They started to teach them the basics so they could understand how these extraterrestrial technologies worked.

The Pleiadeans reported Arcturian leaders about the behavior their emissaries were having on Earth. Therefore, they ordered them to immediately leave the Earth and leave humans alone, and they did so, but not before inheriting their knowledge, customs, language, and beliefs to the human Lulus who were in Africa.

Little had changed things with the resolution of the Kadistu. It is true that the humans were now living in a social system and had some more advanced knowledge. However, they continued to be dominated and manipulated by the Anunnaki.

Until one day, nearly a hundred fifty years after the creation of Sumer, at an event where one of the high priests, a hybrid ruler of Sumer, was walking among the slaves, one of them named Isaki managed to get in front of the high priest and without any scruple, he took a spear and threw it right in the chest of the ruler causing him to die. Next moment, this slave started to scream that the gods and demigods were not immortal, honoring the crowd and causing a large revolt.

A part of Sumerian slaves had awakened, and they realized that their rulers, who everybody feared were just like them, and died just like them. The news quickly spread over Sumer, causing great unrest throughout the city putting at risk the pyramidal system imposed by their gods.

The Anunnaki for the first time in their history had fear of going down to Earth since they were afraid that the humans could attack them. Anu was furious and blamed the Carians for having planned the murder. He knew perfectly that he could not attack humans due to the resolution of the Kadistu, and that there were many alien races watching, so he created a plan to fix it.

The Carians and Pleiadeans from the Moonbase celebrated this event since humans had taken the first step towards their liberation.

Enki was surprised about this event and had mixed feelings, since on the one hand he looked forward to his creation putting resistance to be enslaved, and on the other hand he felt worried because he knew perfectly that the human Lulus, by using violence, could become a very dark breed in the future if they wanted to.

Anu ordered Enlil to take some hybrids and slaves from Sumer who were worshipers of the gods and settle them in another place to start everything again.

Enlil saw a magnificent opportunity to implement his plan. So not only the hybrids, but he also moved his chosen people, who were faithful to him and brought them to settlements located on the banks of the Middle River and bass of the Nile River. And he started to lead hybrids to begin the construction of a new civilization. In order to achieve this, they could use as slaves his chosen people. Egypt was born.

Marduk, took this opportunity to convince Anu to let him take several people from Sumer and create a new city far from the chaos that this civilization had become and to continue benefiting from humans, to which Anu agreed.

Marduk persuaded a handful of men and women and took them to a location near to Sumer, where he established the city of Akkad.

In Sumer, forty percent of the population had ceased to believe in the gods and began to work for their own account, and another sixty percent, fearful of the wrath of the gods was still faithful to the imposed pyramidal system.

Unfortunately for Anu, the Draconians went to his mother ship to see how things were going in Uras, and quickly, the Draconians named humans as the Sag - Giga, which means the village of blackheads because from the mother ship human heads were black because of the hair. Besides that, they realized that the sacrifices had gone down considerably and that the humans had advanced considerably with respect to their last visit. Because of that Anu was told to divide the humans so they ordered him to begin with their communication system; if they could not understand themselves, they could never be together.

Anu got perfectly the idea. However, he had a problem, since the Anunnaki had only two dialects from the Emešà, their mother tongue dialects; these were the Emenite and the Emesal. So he ordered Enlil to teach the Emenite to the new civilization that was growing near the Nile River. And he told Ninhursag to help Marduk to teach the Emesal to residents of the new city of Akkad.

Enki suspected that Marduk was plotting something, so he ordered the ruler of Sumer to build a wall around the city, anticipating what was going to happen.

The Draconians volunteered to help transmit one of their languages to the sag-giga humans, so they focused on the inhabitants who were in Asia, who had not been manipulated nor been indoctrinated, yet had evolved considerably. It was the perfect opportunity to start manipulating them.

Fortunately, the Draconians did not have enough patience to train these humans. So, they limited to convey the language and teach them to make sacrifices, obviously. Enki did not agree on having different languages between humans, so he claimed that to Anu, and he replied that he was only teaching them new ways of communicating and that he was not forcing them to anything. It depended on them whether they accepted it or not.

Enki knew perfectly that he could not stop this, so he devoted himself to travel in his ship from one place to another to teach and pass on his knowledge to humans of all over the world, starting with the humans who were in Europe and which were less advanced technologically. Humankind began to call him Hermes Trismegistus, the thrice-time great because of all the knowledge he taught.

Only one hundred years after the arrival of humans to the banks of the Nile, a new civilization was born and its name was Egypt. The quick creation of this civilization was mostly due to the extraterrestrial technology that Enlil had provided them because he wanted to build three pyramids perfectly aligned to the Orion constellation so everybody would remember where their gods came from.

For this purpose, Enlil taught the Egyptians a new system of belief, very similar to the Sumerian one but with different gods. Although in reality they were the same only with different names. For example, Anu was Ra; Osiris, Set, and Anubis were Enlil; Horus and Thoth were Enki; etc. But obviously maintaining the main objective of having people frightened so that they offered them sacrifices.

This, Enlil had already planned it with Anu since the Draconians wanted humans to have different belief systems so that they could never unify.

The social system was pyramidal, very similar to the Sumerian in which at the top were the Pharaohs. But the only difference was that this Egyptian system was more slaver, as the chosen people of Enlil had to work more than 12 hours a day for a minimum payment of wheat.

The Carians, worried about Enki being so involved in the construction of Egypt, spent a lot of time visiting this civilization and trying to awake the population. Because of that, the Egyptians also identified them as gods. Even Horus was drawn and described as a Carian.

While all of this was happening in Egypt, Marduk had already led to the Akkadians to build a great city, almost as important as Uruk in Sumer. He had taught them the same system of beliefs the Sumerians had with the only difference that the main god was not Anu, but for them it was Marduk.

Anu realized that this city was growing very fast and they revered more Marduk than him, so he summoned him to question him that, to which Marduk replied that it was a decision that the Akkadians had taken and that he had nothing to do. Anu did not believe him. But he could only threaten him and tell him not to dare to challenge his power.

All the Anunnaki were amazed by the Majesty of Egyptian civilization. Marduk took advantage of that to convince the Akkadians that began to create weapons secretly. The plan to be the one God was going on. Marduk had already achieved great power thanks to the subtle energies that all the Akkadians gave to him. He even had won followers among the Anunnaki, more because of fear of him than out of respect, so he was convinced of taking Anu out from power.

On the year two thousand three hundred and fifty-three BC, Marduk convinced a man called Zargon to attack Uruk and all the Sumer cities. So, he did it. He took the weapons that the Akkadians had created and with a numerous army started the war, leaving a great slaughter and suffering behind. Zargon beat all the Sumerian cities with the exception of Uruk which was already surrounded by a great wall and that made her almost impervious to the attacks of the Akkadians.

The Draconians and the Anunnaki were marveled by the huge negative subtle energies that the suffering and death of humans gave off. So much time had passed since the last time there was a large amount of energy for them. That last time was when the tree nuclear weapons exploded, causing the great flood.

Anu and Enlil, meanwhile, were furious, since they knew that Marduk was behind all of this even though he denied it outright. However, seeing that his Akkadian army could not trespass Uruk’s great wall, he desperately offered him one of the Me Tablets he had stolen, only in that way they could take over all Sumer.

The Akkadian empire, the first empire in the world had been born.

Anu, upon finding out that Marduk had stolen a Destiny’s Tablet, condemned him to prison. Marduk’s plan was that his allies stole the Destiny’s Tablets that were left and, in that way, taking over the mothership. But Enlil anticipated this and managed to capture all the Anunnaki allies of Marduk and prevented this to happen.

Marduk was captured and taken before Anu, who had sentenced him to death. However, the Draconians interceded for him, saying that Marduk had taught them something, that humans could feed them without sacrifices. They just had to be convinced of fighting each other so they could be benefited.

Anu was furious for Marduk’s disobedience, but as the Draconians were on his side, he sentenced him to exile, for which Marduk was grateful because being alive, he could regain strength with all the sacrifices the great Akkadian empire offered to him and come back to overthrow Anu.

Marduk was exiled from the Earth and the mothership, but not before having taught them beings the benefits of war.

The Pleiadeans, having seen the killing and suffering the humans had done, could not tolerate it anymore, since they knew they were being manipulated by the Anunnaki. So, they decided to put on work the plan to expel definitely the Anunnaki and Draconians from Earth. They and the Intraterrestrials activated hundreds of antennas they had installed in the Abzu and started to produce low-frequency electromagnetic waves from the Moon to the Earth with the sole purpose that this would make it vibrate at an increasingly dense frequency, so high, that for the Anunnaki and any extraterrestrial race would be impossible to tolerate.

The Anunnaki realized that, as the time passed by, it was more difficult to be on Earth. They knew that their vibration was changing. The first to realize was Enki, so he decided to do several things before leaving Earth. One of them was visiting the Atlanteans in America and giving them the technology to build great stone buildings. The second thing was creating a secret society in Egypt at which he would not only teach science to humans but also the secrets of the universe, the spirit, death, and matter. The Brotherhood of the White Dragon was born.

And the last thing he did was discover the Chosen People of Enlil since he had discovered that his brother had a group of very loyal humans and that at some point he was going to use them one way or another. So, he tried to recruit some of these humans at the back of Enlil, which was very hard. However, he managed to recruit several of them and led them to the western shore of the Dead Sea, where he founded a town known as the Essenes.

The Draconians were furious because of the vibration change of the Earth. They knew that sooner or later they would have to abandon it. Due to that, he taught Anu and Enlil rituals so that humans could communicate with them, only that there was a problem, these rituals would only work if the communication was between different dimensional levels and only on specific days along the year.

Enlil taught passed on and taught these rituals to members of his people and the great priests of Egypt, and told them to communicate with him on those exact days.

Anu was worried about what the reaction of the Draconians would be since they were one step away from losing their human farm. In just 60 years the vibration of the Earth was so dense that the Anunnaki had to leave the Earth. They even had to take their mothership out of the orbit of the Earth.

The humans were free at last. Or at least that is what the Pleiadeans thought.

The Draconians, furious, knew that the Pleiadeans were responsible for that. So they made a complaint to the Galactic Confederation saying that the Pleiadeans had violated the Human Free Will law. The Galactic Confederation promised to analyze the claim and make a decision.

Enki was tired of everybody making decisions to change the destiny of his creation. So he finally decided to liberate once and forever the humankind. He knew that although he could not be close to the Earth, he could communicate with the humans through the phase. That is how he started his most ambitious plan to liberate humankind, a plan that would change the history of the world forever...

The Birth of the Messiah

Expelled from the Earth, the Anunnaki and the Draconians as result of the Pleiadeans' plan and the support of the Intraterrestrials, the Anunnaki were stationed about 560.000 kilometers from the Earth. And from there, Enki tried to communicate through the phase with some humans on Earth but he had no success because the enormous distance between them could not connect them using the astral projection to make contact through dreams, as it had done many times before from his mothership.

At this distance the subtle energies that the humans gave off could not be captured or perceived by the Anunnaki nor the Draconians, that's why Enlil came up to the idea of creating a suit that could eliminate the negative effect that the vibrations of moon produced on them. Something that the Draconians did not approve since they had another plan. Anu was told he would be transferred along with the rest of the Anunnaki caravan to the astral bottom of the fourth dimension to escape the electromagnetic waves emitted by the Moon, and from there they would capture the subtle energies of the human and deliver them to them.

Anu told them that was not possible because their bodies were not so evolved to move between dimensions. The Draconians informed him that they already had the technology to travel to the fourth dimension without having an interdimensional body. Anu, amazed, realized of all the time that had passed in Uras, the Earth, he had forgotten the technological advances that the Draconians could have reached as well, so he was unable to do other than to imagine it.

Enlil asked them why they had to be in the astral bottom. The Draconians explained to him that, as the dimensions are interconnected, the lower is the frequency, the closer will be the lower dimension. That is, the astral bottom of the fourth dimension is the closest to the third dimension. Being in the astral center of the fourth dimension, they would be further and at the risk of not being able to capture the energies of the humans. And, while in the astral top of the fourth dimension it would be closer to the fifth dimension than the third and possibly their bodies would not resist it. In addition, they said that the rituals they taught humans to communicate with them only worked when performed between two adjacent dimensions.

Their plan was simple: once installed in the fourth dimension, the Anunnaki could see everything humans did, however, they would be invisible to human eyes, since being in a higher dimension, and these would be imperceptible to the lower dimensions. However, they could materialize in the third dimension through the rituals that humans made on specific dates.

Enlil asked what would happen if educated humans did not perform those rituals. The Draconians answered them that if that happened, they would have lost to the human farm.

In other words, they were going to take the risk of going to the fourth dimension to depend on the free will of the human Lulus.

Such an irony...

The Draconians led Anu, Enlil, and Enki alongside other thirteen Anunnaki to Orion into a machine that would take them to the fifth dimension. And the Anunnaki who refused to leave were left on a moon of Jupiter, now known under the name of Europe, where they were used as slaves in the huge bases that the Draconians had in that satellite.

The plan went on, and the reptile Anunnaki were transferred from Orion to the fourth dimension. It took the Anunnaki almost five hundred Earth years to adapt their body to this new dimension. Once done, Enki, began to try to connect with the dreams of humans to communicate with them. It took him some time, but he was successful. He managed to connect through the phase with two humans: one man located on the European continent, paradoxically, the less developed of the continents at that time; and also communicated with one of the Essenes disciples.

Enki knew that not being present among humans and only being able to communicate with a few who had the gift, knowledge would have to be passed from man to man, and from generation to generation. So he first passed a lot of knowledge on the first man in Europe and, later, asked him to form a group of ten more men to whom he should convey all the knowledge acquired. And finally ordered that each of those men began to instruct and teach others, the younger the best. Thus the first schools were born, the first masters and first apprentices.

This method was so effective and the knowledge delivered by Enki was so vast, that just over six hundred years, this group of wise humans, had already created the great Greek civilization, where one of the pillars was the transmission of knowledge, the Government was focused on the decisions of the people, and it was the first civilization that did not have slaves. Parallel to this, during this time, he was transmitting knowledge to the Essenes that managed to communicate with him, focused on increasing their psychic and spiritual power.

Generation after generation, he tried to share their knowledge so that they could evolve, since his plan was that some of them could become Christified. That is, reach Nirvana and show the way to all humankind for their liberation and evolution.

While the Essenes had managed a psychical and spiritual breakthrough as the power to heal with their hands, telekinesis, etc. they had not been able to even touch the Christification line. Enki became aware that the problem was in the codons of the DNA that humans had connected, that did not allow them to activate their pineal gland. This plan of Enki was very ambitious, as if achieved, human beings could come to overtake the Anunnaki.

While this was happening with Enki, Anu and the other Anunnaki, managed to communicate with the humans who performed the rituals twice a year: once in the Equinox and another on the Solstice. In fact, those who performed these rituals were mostly hybrids that had been trained by and were faithful to the Anunnaki and they were basically ordered to introduce human sacrifices in Asia, which followed the massacres to the Akkadians, oppression in Egypt, etc.

The Anunnaki continued manipulating humankind to be always in conflict and thus, they could capture the subtle negative energies of the human. These negative energies were trapped by the Anunnaki in the fourth dimension with some containers that the Draconians gave them. Once filled, they were carried by Enki to Orion and delivered to the Draconians. Although on many occasions the Draconians themselves arrived in the fourth dimension to pick up these containers.

Negative energy collected from humans was much smaller than the one that existed when the Anunnaki were on Earth. And this bothered to the Draconians since their farm did not give the benefits that they expected. So they told Anu to introduce the concept of money and told him that all human transactions had to be replaced with metal balls. Then Anu ordered the hybrids in one of their rituals to introduce the concept of money and the currency around the world.

The first to use this concept were the Asian civilizations in the 700 B.C, approximately. And it quickly began to be used in Egypt, Acadia and neighboring towns.

The Draconians knew that through this simple concept of money they could raise on humans their darkest and most twisted side and that it would help to have them more controlled. And so they would be easier to manipulate for squeezing them all their negative energy. And so was born the most powerful control over humankind, money method.

At that time, Egypt kept growing, by pressing their slaves, and strictly following their polytheist religion. Although human sacrifices and animals were drastically reduced.

The Akkadians were expanding their empire, fighting all the tribes and towns they found, although their rivals were less and less. This greatly reduced the negative energy emanated by humankind. Also, they continued worshiping Marduk as their major god. However, this changed and other gods like Anu and Enlil began to be worshipped more and more.

Asians had already created several different civilizations. And they were led by dynasties. Always in conflict with each other. The art of war was always a constant among Asians. In addition to more sacrifices, most of them, performed with animals.

The Americans had already created three large settlements: one located in Peru, one in Central America, and other in North America. Despite having the technology to create large buildings of stone, there had been little progress. Over time, they had lost much of the knowledge inherited by Enki.

The Americans had already advanced, but still had not managed to create a civilization. And finally, the Europeans, who were further behind humans at that time, with the knowledge delivered by Enki gave a great evolutionary leap. They had already created the most humanist civilizations in history, the Greek civilization.

Enlil intuited that Enki had something to do with the evolution of this civilization. So he began to follow him more closely. Towards 1.200 B.C, Enlil discovered how Enki communicated with humans throughout the phase. This was a unique opportunity for his interests, so he decided not to tell anything to Anu, and decided to learn how to communicate across the phase. After much practice, Enlil was able to control the phase and tried repeatedly to communicate with a member of his chosen people. All without success. His first contact was established with a man who was the brother of the future Pharaoh of Egypt. His name was Moses. And it was so much the manipulation introduced by Enlil that he managed to convince him that he was, in fact, a Hebrew and that his mission was to release his chosen people. He took him from Egypt and sent him to Syria where once it had been the first Anunnaki settlement. Just for him to get one of the tools that were used to create an electromagnetic field and levitate stones. And, with that, create large buildings.

However, Enlil had actually been able to deceive Moses saying that it was a very powerful weapon that would protect him from his enemies. This trip took Moses quite a while, and at his return to Egypt, his brother was already the Pharaoh. Strictly following the instructions of Enlil, he threatened his brother Ramses telling him to release the Hebrews —that was how the people faithful to Enlil called themselves— otherwise, he would suffer the wrath of their god. Ramses obviously ignored the warning of his brother, so Moses poured into the waters of the Nile River a chemical that had been prepared with his own hands following the instructions of Enlil. This substance caused all the fish in the river to die instantly, dying red the water because of the blood of these dead fish. In addition, many amphibians such as frogs came out of the river and began to invade the Egyptians crops.

A large number of dead fish attracted a large number of flies and insects to Egypt, causing a real plague. This, coupled with a huge hail storm that coincidentally occurred in the afternoon, caused that many people close to the Pharaoh who had heard the threat of Moses attributed all these phenomena to the wrath of his god.

Moses who was already known by almost all Jews, met Ramses again, and once more asked him to release his people otherwise his god's wrath would fall more forcefully about Egypt.

Ramses refused outright. So, instructed by Enlil, Moses asked all the Hebrews that night to sacrifice a lamb and with its blood to put a visible mark on the doors of their homes, since only those who had that mark would be saved from the wrath of his god.

Once the night came, a group chosen by Moses began to fireballs of paper wrapped inside the same chemical that he poured into the Nile River and they started to throw them to all the houses that didn't have the mark of blood, including the house of the pharaoh, since the guards did not oppose to Moses and allowed him to enter out of fear of his god.

This caused the death of many people. Most of them were children who could not resist the toxic gases of this chemical. The rumors and the fear quickly spread all over Egypt. And those events were attributed to the god of the Hebrews. Ramses, awash in fear, seeing his son on the edge of death decided to free the Hebrews and let them go. His plan was to corner them along the Red Sea and mow them down there, out of the sight of the Egyptian.

The exodus of the chosen people begun. And arriving at the Red Sea, they were ambushed by the Egyptian cavalry. Then Moses used the weapon his God gave him and realized that while he approached the sea, this created a field that divided it in two and allowed a passage through it. So they went to the narrowest part of the sea and crossed it running.

Most of Egyptian who saw this miracle stopped. However, a few dared to continue the persecution. And once Moses deactivated this artifact, the Red Sea went again together, burying his pursuers.

Once they crossed the Red Sea, Moses led them to Mount Sinai, as his god had commanded. And he climbed it to receive new orders. It took him forty days to carve on a stone the commandments dictated to him by his god. There, for the first time, Moses asked Enlil his name, and he replied to Yahweh, which means "I am". And he said to Moses that those commandments had to be literally accepted, solely by his chosen people.

These miracles caused such an impact in the world of that time that the word spread quickly. The god of the Hebrews was the only one and he had given those Commandments for all humankind. These commandments were thought by Enlil to have completely controlled all his people. Later, Enlil, Yahweh, told Moses to lead his people to the desert where he had them walk for forty years to test their faith. Something that he loved doing to Enlil. He finally led them to Canaan and it was there where the twelve tribes of Israel established and the Jewish were born.

The subtle energies increased greatly with all these events and Anu suspected that the liberation of these slaves was the work of Enki, although later he realized that it was not so. An excellent plot of Enlil.

Enki was completely bewildered. So he began to investigate that so-called god Yahweh that had caused all this. Anu, worried about the great evolution of the Greek civilization started to see them as a great threat to the interests of the Anunnaki. He then ordered Enlil to corrupt it.

Enlil began to infiltrate several hybrids and members of his chosen people so that they could to indoctrinate the Greeks through religion and worship of the gods. And so it began the Greek mythology. But Enlil was not satisfied with that. He wanted to break them from the inside, breaking their spirit. And this was achieved by promoting debauchery and purely physical practices as homosexuality or pederasty.

Little by little the Greek people became corrupt and separated from his spiritual teachings and originally humanist.

After five hundred years of the emergence of the Greek civilization, this was not remotely similar to what it was in its beginning. Since they were totally indoctrinated worshiping false gods and creating weapons to have an army and thus conquer their enemies.

Enki seeing this, instructed a group of Greek sages to steer towards the South. Specifically in Rome, so they could create another civilization with the same principles of ancient Greece.

And so on the year 500 B.C, approximately, it was established the Roman Republic, which for 450 years followed the precepts of Justice and humankind that had received from Enki. However, he knew that it was a matter of time for the Anunnaki to manipulate and corrupt this new civilization.

Enki realized that the only hope was to show the Christification to humans. So he decided to play his last card. In one of the trips to Orion to deliver the containers to the Draconians, Enki asked for help from the Carians. Since he wanted to create another human with the characteristics of the first race, which had thirty-two DNA codons active. Enki had calculated that for his plan to be effective, he would have to create another human with at least thirty active codons.

Many Carians refused since they believed that it was against the rules of the Kadistu. Enki explained to them that this human would be born only if humans wanted so. A small group of Carians decided to help and support the plan of Enki.

After several trips to Orion delivering containers, Enki received the news that the Carians finally had the genetic material, which, according to their calculations, could create a very similar human to the original race. Enki took the DNA sample and asked for help from the Pleiadeans, and it was that how the Anunnaki continued manipulating humankind, but now from the fourth dimension.

During this time the Pleiadeans had lost hope in humankind for all they had done in the Earth, but upon finding out about the Anunnaki manipulation, many of them decided to help Enki.

During all the time this plan had been carried out, the Anunnaki already had complete control of the Roman Republic and had turned it into a great empire. Conquering Greece by the year 146 B. C, and conquering the Egyptian civilization before Christ.

A few years later, Enki had ready his plan. He had already made contact through the phase with a woman called Mary who lived in Nazareth and had asked her in her dreams if she would accept to receive a child, who could become the Savior of humankind. Mary confused Enki with God since the stories among the Jews was God who talked with people through dreams. So she accepted.

Enki communicated the news to the Pleiadeans. So they asked for help to the Intraterrestrials, who took Maria in one of their ships while she slept and transferred her to the moon, where the Pleiadeans introduced her the genetic material that Enki had given them through artificial insemination and later returned her to the Earth.

Enlil, who was constantly spying on Enki, found out this plan and tried to stop it at all costs. However, on September 29th of 2 A. D, Jesus was born. And this event would change the future of humankind forever…

Jesus's War Declaration to Enlil

Enki, along with the Carians, created a human being very similar to the primordial, with thirty active codons in DNA; this would change the history of humankind completely. His name was Jesus.

While Enki carried out his plan, Enlil had already infiltrated many members of his chosen people in key positions to control Rome. And had created a vast Empire. When Enlil found out Enki's plan and heard him, in a conversation that he had with a Carian, immediately prevented this to happen. So he quickly contacted a hybrid, loyal to him, who was king of Rome and belonged to his chosen people and advised him to do everything to prevent this child from being born. Otherwise, he would put on risk all the Roman Kingdom. This king, called Herod, accepted the mission and agreed to kill all children under two years and that had been born in their territories.

Enki, upon finding this out, told Maria to escape. And while fleeing, in the town of Bethlehem, Jesus was born on September, 23 of 2 AD. To his birth, three Essenes magicians came to visit him, who were sent by Enki to help Joseph and Mary in their flee. These magicians led Mary, Joseph, and Jesus to Egypt to the White Brotherhood, which according to Enki, was the safest place where Jesus could be. Because during this time, this great Brotherhood of White magicians had not been detected by Enlil.

During the birth of Jesus and the flee from Egypt, Enki did not have any contact with the Magi or Maria, since he was constantly guarded by Enlil. He had planned this much earlier. Because of this, he had sent the Essene magicians with precise instructions.

Herod thought that he had already killed the child and that he had fulfilled the mission entrusted by their God Yahweh. However, Enlil was not very convinced of this, so he suggested Herod to run a strict surveillance in the villages of Galilee, Nazareth, and Bethlehem, and if a child was born, he would inform him immediately.

Jose, Mary, and Jesus remained four years in the Great White Brotherhood of Egypt, until the death of Herod. Enlil, after all this time, suspected that the child had fled from the Roman Empire, but did not know where. Until one day, Enki, intentionally let Enlil overhear a conversation that he had with an Essene mage, in which he told him to protect a child in Egypt and then take him to Greece. Enlil, trusting in this conversation, began to contact all humans he had access to, and asked them to search for this child in Egypt and Greece.

Enki had tricked Enlil since he knew that the only place where he would not search was the place where they had escaped to, and when Herod had died, his vigilance had been forgotten. So, he advised Mary to return to her village, Nazareth. And they did so. Four-year-old Jesus lived in Nazareth as any other child. However, he realized very soon that he could modify reality with only thinking and pronouncing it. Since he was a child, he began to recognize his great power, however, he could not control it. Sometimes, when he was angered and thought of something bad, this also became reality.

Enki realized of the great potential that Jesus had. So he decided to teach him, and there was no one better than the Essene magicians to do so. So he gave them precise instructions to teach Jesus.

It was until he was twelve, that the three Essene magicians went for him to instruct him in the Mission of the Christification of his conscience, and to dominate his power. He was first taken to the Great White Brotherhood in Egypt where he was trained for some years. Later, they took him to several secret lodges located in India, Tibet, Persia, Syria, and Greece; finally, he finished his training in Qumran, the village of the Essenes. They were surprised by everything that Jesus was able to do since he had reached a point at which he could change reality at will with only his words and thoughts.

Jesus during all his training understood all the manipulation to which humankind was exposed. And he understood exactly why the Kadistu made the decision to let the humans act on their own will. Jesus understood that he could not intervene directly in the awakening of the consciousness of humankind, but his mission was to show us the way to our awakening and freedom: humans must demonstrate that they are a breed worth of being preserved in the universe.

He also understood why Enki had devised this plan for the salvation of humankind. So he decided to cut off all communication with him to avoid being manipulated and began his journey to continue with his mission.

It should be noted that Enki could not contact Jesus, and understood very well that Jesus understood perfectly the law of free will, and did not want to be manipulated by anyone.

After finishing his training, Jesus was able to communicate with the Universal source, THE TRUE GOD OF EVERYTHING, and Jesus referred to him as his father, since he understood that we are all One, since we are all Him.

Enki was surprised by the progress of Jesus, since it really scared him a little since no Anunnaki or Draconians in all their history had been able to communicate with the Universal Source.

It was at the age of thirty that Jesus returned to Nazareth to see Mary and Jose, and this is where he fully began to fulfill his mission. The first thing he did was to perform a ritual called baptism, in which he was helped by John the Baptist; a man who knew Jesus from childhood and who had been surprised by the miracles he had made and had been faithful to him since then. So, Jesus took him as his first disciple. In the baptism, Jesus was anointed and cleaned on his spirit.

Then he went to the desert where he was forty days fasting, and where he decided to contact Enlil to dissuade him from his plan of submitting the humankind. Enlil was surprised of the ease with which Jesus found him, he tried to tempt him, offering him pleasures, honors and riches of the Earth provided that he joined him into his plan to rule the world. Obviously, Jesus did not accept and warned him of the consequences of that.

Enlil realized he had to act quickly since Jesus was not a common human as the people he knew. He realized that he was special and could put an end to their plans if he didn't do something.

When Jesus returned from the desert, he went to Judea, where he formally declared war to Enlil throwing all the priests, preachers, desecrators, and sellers, out of the Temple of Jehovah, alluding that who they adored was not God. Then was demonstrated that Jesus was against the Church and religion since he knew that was one of the most effective methods to control and manipulate humankind. He, then, returned to Galilee and met Maria Magdalena with which he fell in love and subsequently married in Canaan having two children, a man, and a woman.

Jesus was aware that to wake up humankind his work had to be written and recorded for posterity. So he chose his final twelve disciples, who followed him, listened to his words, and transcribed them witnessing his miracles.

It only took Jesus three years to make all kinds of miracles, which he carried out thanks to the faith that his followers had. The message of Jesus was very clear: you create your own reality; he only taught us the way.

Enlil was afraid of all that this man called Jesus was able to do. He quickly lost many followers of his chosen people, and they ceased to worship him. The only ones who followed him were hybrids that had Anunnaki blood, and most of them held positions of power. He tried by all means to contact people he had to stop Jesus. However, they did not accept since they feared Jesus and his miracles.

Enlil was contemplating the collapse of his power. Jesus was awakening the conscience of humankind and he could not do much. He had to wait for the hybrids to communicate with him through the agreed rituals, and it was there where contacted one who was a leader of the Pharisees telling him he had to stop Jesus at all costs. And so it was that they began to accuse him of conspiracy against the Roman Empire.

Jesus knew very well what was going to happen and the sacrifice that had to do. So, at the last supper, he made a ritual to give part of his power to his disciples and instructed them to spread the word and his deeds around the world over time. And he asked them help carry out his plan. He told Judas to handle him over so that he could fulfill his purpose.

Although Judas didn't want to do it, he did not disobey the commandment of his master. The Roman guard took Jesus to the Sanhedrin (Assembly or Council of elders of ancient Israel), but he could not be judged as they wanted. Since they didn't have the necessary civil powers. So Caiaphas, who was the hybrid contacted by Enlil, proposed that Jesus was brought before the Roman authorities, taking it before Pontius Pilate, who did not want to judge him, so he washed his hands and let the people decide whether they wanted to save him or Barabbas.

While Caiaphas had gotten a large number of Jews to vote against Jesus, in fact, they were not so many as to decide the future of the Nazarene, so Jesus changed the emotional frequency of the people gathered there to vote against him, and so he could carry out his sacrifice.

Enki did not understand very well the plan that Jesus had. How could he, sacrificing his life, save humankind? It was until later that he understood it.

Enlil knew that he was winning, but still had doubts, since, with the great power that Jesus had, it seemed very strange that everything was happening so quickly. Jesus was tortured and crucified on Mount Calvary. Just before he died, there was a total solar eclipse. And there, he contacted the Universal source and told it to forgive humankind, because they were not yet aware enough.

When his body was lowered from the cross, a soldier pierced him on one side of his body with a spear, and then they buried him in a grave covered with a large stone entrance.

Enlil was already victorious and also was completely bewildered by all that had happened. When suddenly, after three Earth days, Jesus resurrected and came before his Apostles showing Enlil and all the Anunnaki he had gotten Christified and had managed to overcome death. He gave the last instructions to his Apostles and said to his spouse, Mary Magdalene, to take their children to the Great White Brotherhood, where they would continue his work to balance the good and evil on Earth.

After this, Jesus ascended to the fifth dimension, overcoming the Draconians and reptilian Anunnaki being at the level of a Kadistu. Enlil was terrified with the power of Jesus and the work he had done on Earth. He knew that it was a matter of time for humankind to wake up. He had no choice but to ask for help from Anu and confessed to him that he and Enki could communicate with humans through the phase.

Anu, who had not been around Earth all this time, and did not understand any of this, agreed to help Enki; not out of interest, but for fear of losing the human farm and of the possibility of another Jesus that could deal with them. The truth was that Anu was no longer interested in the human Lulus since he had realized that he and all the other Anunnaki had become parasites of all human. They had left their lives behind becoming simple farmers controlled by the Draconians. In addition, he did not feel very much at home in the fourth dimension. So, he had been devising a plan to get rid of the Draconians control. He knew that his only option was to ask for help from his race Usumgal because if they joined the Kingu race, they could face the enormous power of the Draconians.

Meanwhile, the Draconians were not aware of what was happening on Earth until they realized that a human had managed to overcome them, and he had installed in the fifth dimension. They were bewildered and terrified by this event, so they decided to send a large caravan to the fourth dimension with the Anunnaki to see what was happening in Uras, Earth.

The Carians were impressed and had never imagined that a human could have so much power. On the one hand they were glad because humans were closer to their liberation, and on the other hand, they were aware that humans could represent a great danger if they increased their power and used it against them. So they began to doubt whether their plan was successful or not.

Enki, impressed, never thought at which level could Jesus get, and did not know if to regret or rejoice about this plan, since a human had overtaken them by far.

Finally, he realized that Jesus's mission had been a success: He had gotten Christified, he taught us the way to our liberation, and he had demonstrated all the alien races that the humans were a race to take into account, and that they were worth their existence in the universe.

But the most important thing is that Jesus had taught humankind was the most powerful force in the universe: love.

Anu and Enlil could not be idle. So, they started to devise a plan to revert this situation...

The god Yahweh and his New Identity

Reaching the fifth dimension, his disciples began to write and spread the story of Jesus, and this quickly spread throughout Rome and Europe.

This greatly reduced the number of believers of the god Yahweh and the Roman gods, reducing the chosen people to a minority and made staggering these religions.

Anu and Enlil, seeing that their power was crumbling, contacted their faithful disciples, the hybrids. They were the emperors of Rome and were advised to impose the polytheistic religion as the official, sentencing to death to whom did not profess it.

It should be noted that Enlil was not entirely in agreement with this decision since he would have preferred Rome to put Yahweh as the one God. However, given the critical situation, he accepted and supported the decision. That is how it began in Rome the hunt of the followers of Jesus.

The second advice they gave to the hybrids was to chase and put an end to all the disciples of Jesus who spread his word to avoid them to be shared around the world. Each hybrid that was the Emperor took the advice, and they began to prosecute the disciples. However, the disciples had the support of the members of the society of the White Dragon, who knew very well that if they wanted humankind to be saved, it was necessary to share the message of Jesus, which was based on love and the destruction of dogmas and churches. Therefore, it was very difficult to catch the disciples of Jesus to the Roman Empire.

While this was happening, the Draconians went to the fourth dimension and demanded an explanation from Anu, who told them that Jesus had been modified genetically by the Carians and the Pleiadeans, and that had caused all that disaster. The Draconians asked Anu why they did not have been advised before, and Anu replied that they had realized of that this until Jesus ascended into the fifth dimension.

The Draconians took this action of the Carians and Pleiadeans as a disobedience of the orders of the Kadistu since, for them, they had violated the law of free will of humans. So they decided to impose a complaint to the members of the Galactic Confederation.

Anu told them that they had already taken action in Uras, Earth, to reverse this and make a definitive break with the message of Jesus. But the Draconians were well aware that such measures would not work out, since the message of Jesus was going to survive through time and space, and advised Anu to change strategy: they did not have to impose their polytheistic religion, but that they had to change the message of Jesus and persuade the humans of that. That is, make humans believe that Jesus gave a different message.

Enlil who was listening to the conversation said it was going to take a long time, to which the Draconians answered that they had plenty of time.

Even though Anu had not told anything to the Draconians about the participation of Enki in the creation of Jesus, he put two security guards to watch Enki full-time so he did not come out of the fourth dimension and banned him from communicating with humans under penalty of banishment.

Enki, embarrassed with everything his plan had unleashed, was obliged to abide by the punishment of his father.

It was the year 60 AD, when Nero, a hybrid King of Rome, was commissioned to strictly comply orders from their Anunnaki masters. First, he attacked the town of Qumran, destroying almost entirely the Essenes, surviving only a dozen people who traveled to Egypt to take refuge in the White Brotherhood. Later in the year 67, Nero ordered the killing of Peter, and he was crucified head down in the circle of the Vatican Hill. He was buried there, in what we know today as the Vatican.

But Nero not only prosecuted the followers of Jesus but also hunted regularly the Jews, the chosen people of Enlil, destroying Jerusalem, since he wanted that the Roman religion was the only one. This marked the beginning of the Diaspora or Dispersion of the Jews, known as a wandering people and homeless.

Enlil could not stop the free will of Nero, so the only thing he could do was to contact a member of his chosen people, and advise him to flee with the greater number of people he could. He did this for the sole purpose of not wanting to lose his few worshipers on Earth.

However, despite all these murders and prosecution of the followers of Jesus, his words, teachings, and followers continued growing. Enlil realized that the Draconians were right. The message of Jesus was so strong that it could not be stopped, so he began to do the opposite of what Jesus preached.

Jesus did not want churches, so in the 69, Enlil advised Rome's new emperor, Vespasian, another hybrid to its service, to build a church in the name of Jesus, which would be in charge of the Roman Empire. Vespasian did not understand this advice since the prosecution of the followers of Jesus was at its peak. However, he decided to follow the advice of his god and put in charge to Linen, a man of his confidence, who was to become the first Pope in history.

Meanwhile, in the fourth dimension, the Anunnaki were monitored by a small number of the Draconians who had stayed there because the leaders went to make a formal complaint to the Galactic Confederation.

Anu was called to Orion by the Draconians to give his own words and tell the members of the Galactic Confederation what had happened with Jesus.

After he did this, Anu took this opportunity and on its return to the fourth dimension, he drifted his way and went in search of the Usumgal leaders to tell them all that the Draconians were doing. After listening to him, the Usumgal leaders brought a complaint to the reptilian Council, composed by the leaders of all reptilian races, since the Draconians had hidden information about the arrangements that were carried out in the Galactic Confederation and had not shared them with the reptilian Council, which was a serious violation of the reptilian laws.

The Draconians were called to trials and were dismissed from their post as representatives of the reptilian race in the Galactic Confederation.

The Draconians realized of the betrayal of Anu since he also spoke before the reptilian Council about everything that had happened with the Draconians. After several reptilian days, the reptilian Council did not come to an agreement and the Draconians declared war on the Usumgal, the Kingu, and Sutum since they did not want to lose the power they had in the Galactic Confederation. The only race that remained on the sidelines of this conflict was the Amasutum.

The fifth great reptilian war was about to begin. The Draconians knew that this war was not convenient, but they had no other choice if they did not want to lose their power before the Galactic Confederation and their human farm.

However, they had a hidden plan, because they knew since a long time ago, that to have power upon their farm in Uras, Earth, from the fourth dimension, was not the best thing, and even less with the law of free will. They knew that they were taking many risks and that they had to have representatives into the ground so that the manipulation would be more effective. So they implemented a plan they had been developing for some time, which was to modify the DNA of the Igigi —grey ones— so that they could resist the high densities of the Earth, and once finished they would create clones so that they could be sent to Earth... So they started with genetic experimentation on the grey ones, from a base in the satellite of Jupiter called Europe.

On Earth, was 213 AD, and little had changed: the followers of Jesus continued to increase and the power of Enlil was fading out.

The subtle energies of the humans were at their lowest levels. In addition, the Roman Empire was beginning to break down with countless revolts, showing the first signs of its decline.

Enlil had tried everything. He even had changed the writings of the disciples of Jesus to convince people that he had no divine power. However, it did not work. People just took this new version of Jesus and then discarded it. In addition, the sons of Jesus who were the new leaders of the Brotherhood of the White Dragon had done a good job of spreading the word of Jesus. Enlil, by not being able to delete or change the writings of the disciples of Jesus, decided to change small passages making very subtle changes that were imperceptible to the read, but that would contribute to change the message of Jesus completely.

To this end, he found support in his hybrid, Constantine I, Emperor of Rome, which, in obedience to the advice of his god, put an end to the persecution of Christians with the Edict of Milan, promulgated during his mandate stipulating that it was no longer forbidden to read the Gospels; that is to say, the writings of the disciples of Jesus who narrated their story. In addition, Constantine commanded to build a great basilica on the burial of Peter and thus, it was formally born the Vatican.

The plan of Enlil was to give confidence to the followers of Jesus to begin to read his new modified gospels, and for that, he instructed Melquiades, Pope in charge of the church created by Rome to change various passages in the Gospels. For example: in the part which narrates that Jesus went to Judea to oust the priests, preachers, ghouls, and sellers from the temple of Jehovah, the words priests and preachers were eliminated, leaving the message that Jesus was not against the church nor Jehovah, but against the sellers in a sacred place. And so it was that Enlil came up with the worst idea to plunge humankind: make humans believe that Jesus was the son of Jehovah.

And in every passage where it was mentioned that Jesus contacted the Universal Source, Enlil changed those words by Father, as many times as Jesus referred to the true God.

Enlil knew he could not put the name of Yahweh in the Gospels as it could be rejected, but putting the name of Father, this left open the possibility that Jesus had a real father. That was how the word of Jesus was deliberately manipulated.

However, there was still the most difficult part: to make people accept it. For that, he used the Popes and the new temple created by Rome, exclusive to the new followers of Jesus.

This new version of the story of Jesus had such small changes that people accepted it quickly as if it were the original, and being Enki out of communication with humans, he could not give notice to the Brotherhood of the White Dragon to stop this.

161 Earth years later, Enlil had already succeeded at making his modified Gospels be accepted by a large number of Christians, as the followers of Christ were baptized. And he also managed the church to be accepted, but more importantly, he managed to convince them that the father of Jesus was Yahweh. But he still couldn't totally connect these two stories. In addition, there were still many Christians who did not believe in the church and they did not have those gospels modified, and, to make things worse, he faced another big problem: the Roman Empire had crumbled and it was coming to an end.

Jesus was in the fifth dimension, he knew that he could not intervene directly in the free will of humans, however, he did not forget us. He devoted himself to see everything that was happening with our destiny. And at crucial moments in our history, he sent us from beyond clashes of conscious energies for our awakening. Seeing everything that had happened since the ascension of Jesus to the fifth dimension, the Galactic Confederation convened an urgent Assembly in an attempt to solve all the chaos that was happening in the galaxy with the reptilian war and the fear many alien races had of the power demonstrated by humans.

This Assembly had a double purpose since the Great Council of this Confederation had already planned a solution for the destiny of humankind that, if approved, would change our destiny forever and would open up the possibility for a Reptilian Pact…

The Pact of the Reptilian Beings

The fifth reptilian war was at its peak. This made the Draconians send a small contingent to the fourth dimension to take the Usumgal Anunnaki as prisoners and decide not to kill them. Because they controlled the phase, the more efficient way to communicate with the Lulus.

This was great news for Enki, because as a prisoner of war, he would be separated from the constant control of the Anunnaki guards that Anu had put on him. And despite the fact that the Usumgal Anunnaki had to strictly follow the instructions of the Draconians, he could take advantage of a neglect of them to try to fix things on Earth.

Enlil was really worried about their destiny and the other Anunnaki since he did not know how the Draconians would react if they lost the war against the Usumgal, Kingu, and Sutum alliance. They could most likely be executed. However, they were not in danger since the Draconians were very interested in getting the subtle energies of the human farm.

And the Anunnaki had acquired the ability to communicate with humans to manipulate them so as to maximize the recollection of subtle energies. On Earth it was 476 AD, when the Roman Empire fell into the hands of Odoacer, a warlord, a barbarian, who overthrew the young emperor Romulus Augustus and took over the government in Italy.

This was a harsh blow for the Anunnaki, since the major recollection of negative energies came from the wars and rituals Romans did. This meant a considerable decrease in the energies emanated by humankind, since there were now left the isolated barbarian wars and the energies sent to the God Yahweh by people who believed in him. However, a great part of humankind believed in Jesus and that took away a lot of negative energy to the Anunnaki. So Enlil began to devise a plan to correct this: he had to connect more Jesus with Yahweh, and not leave it as his son.

In the shortage of negative energies, the Draconians ordered their Anunnaki prisoners to indoctrinate humans to worship many gods (as they did in past times), because their perception of it was that, the more gods the humans worshipped, the more subtle energies would emanate from them. This, did not benefit Enlil, since he was the most benefited by usurping the name of Yahweh as god. So he told the Draconians that was impossible because it would take a long time to indoctrinate all humans to believe in many gods again.

The Draconians told him that time was not a problem for them, since, compared to the time of the humans, they were eternal. So if they did not want to suffer the consequences, they had to comply with the orders and get to work.

Upon the threat of the Draconians, Enki proposed an idea: there were large settlements of humans that had not been indoctrinated throughout the American continent. They could manipulate them as they had done it in Egypt and Sumeria. The Draconians accepted this idea and told him that they wanted to possess those Lulus, and they also wanted blood sacrifices in his honor. Therefore, the Anunnaki turned towards Mesoamerican civilizations that had already achieved great advances without the help of the extraterrestrial gods.

Although Enki took that decision to save his Anunnaki fellows, he knew that these humans in America came from Atlantis and they were more intelligent and less manipulable than their Egyptian or Sumerian predecessors. So he told the Draconians that in order to get that, they needed technology and knowledge, otherwise it could not to be possible. The Draconians told him that it did no matter what he did, they wanted results.

This was a great opportunity for Enki. He could finally try to amend his error.

Enlil, surprised by this race of humans that had no knowledge, saw in it an opportunity to be the only god, and before starting with the manipulation in America, he decided to continue with the Roman Empire. As for him, that empire had to be an example of how humans should be indoctrinated. So he contacted Simplicio, a hybrid faithful to him and that served as the Pope at that time, and ordered him to continue practicing the rituals of blood and the laws of the Roman Empire, but now hidden from the seat of the Vatican.

Obviously, Simplicio and the other popes, followed this order. And in this way the Roman Empire continued their domains, camouflaged now from the Vatican.

It took only one hundred Earth years to the Anunnaki to indoctrinate the Mesoamericans, and they created great civilizations, pyramids in strategic points of the Earth to maximize the subtle energies, in addition to teaching them the art of war and sacrifices.

They focused on the areas of the South and Central America. And they achieved this so fast thanks to the advice of Enki, since in exchange of technologies and knowledge, the leaders of these civilizations agreed to do the rituals of blood. Thus were born civilizations such as the Mayas and Incas. To the latter (precisely the settlers of the Nazca culture), they taught to make enormous drawings on Earth so that only the icons could be seen from above, as that is the perspective they have from the fourth dimension; and they did this because the Draconians liked these drawings. That is to say, they had hundreds of men doing these lines in the Nazca region, just for the Draconian's fun.

Enki took advantage of that distraction to communicate with humans and he began to teach the Mayas prohibited knowledge about astrology, mathematics and time. He wanted to amend his error because he felt guilty that the only free humans now had already been indoctrinated, and he realized that in order to evolve, as Jesus did, he had to detach from his ego and help humankind, not for his benefit, but for the benefit of others. From that moment on, Enki stopped seeing humankind as his creation and began to respect them.

The Draconians were surprised by the great advance of these civilizations, but especially of the Mayas, as they had mastered the Mathematics, Agriculture, Astrology, and had managed to understand the time like no other human race. They even began to understand time lines and how to anticipate them, something that the Draconian race was beginning to understand. They realized that the human race was a species to be feared.

In the meantime, the Intraterrestrials had already developed their technology and had already studied the human being; they discovered that this species had not evolved because their pineal gland was disconnected and they suspected that if humans activated it, they could be a great threat to them. They constantly came out of the Abzu and monitored the Earth in their cigar-shaped ships. They had even already begun to explore other planets, thanks to the technology inherited by the Anunnaki. They began to have contact with a human settlement in the north of America, in what is now the United States, and began to tell them how they had been manipulated with genetical engineering by some beings who had come from Orion. In addition, they taught them to respect nature and to live in harmony with the planet.

Many of these beings, were invited to the Abzu to live with them. This human settlement is what we know as the Hopi Indians, and that is the reason why this group of humans had no large constructions and perfectly knew the origin of the human being.

The Galactic Confederation had convened an urgent meeting for the year 600 AD, approximately, Earth time. But it could not be carried out because the reptilian races did not attend due to a boycott that the Draconians made to the Usumgal. So, after mediating with all the Reptilian races, they managed to hold an Assembly around the year 940 AD, Earth time.

This was the first meeting to which the Intraterrestrials were invited, since they would play a crucial role in the plan that the leaders of the Galactic Confederation had. They exposed in this council that due to what happened to Jesus, humans had to be controlled in one way or another, without affecting their free will. So they proposed to use the planet Earth as a planet of test for the incarnated souls. This meant that the Earth was going to become a host for souls of different beings that, in order to evolve, had to go through a very difficult test on a planet with very high density. This test would also apply to humans and would serve as a final test to know if this species was worth of evolving into higher dimensions.

This type of planets existed in different galaxies and were occupied as a final test for species that were stuck in their evolution and needed a final exam to demonstrate if they were worthy to evolve, if they did not pass the test, these species were condemned to repeat their life on that planet with high density. In that they wanted to transform planet Earth...

This resulted in a great debate among all species of the Galactic Confederation, since many were in favor and others against. And this was a great opportunity that the Draconians took advantage of, since they argued that if this was done, it was going to be very easy for humans and for embodied souls of other beings, because the density of the Earth was not as high as the planets used for final tests, and this would not represent a test itself. So they proposed to keep with the human control and put tests increasingly difficult. So they could check whether the Lulu humans were a species that was worth it or not. They wanted to go back to Earth to become gods as in the past.

The leaders of the Galactic Confederation said that was part of their plan: to let the Reptilians continue in control of humankind without any hindrance, but as they were currently doing it from the fourth dimension, without direct intervention with humans in order not to violate their free will.

This would imply that the Intraterrestrials would have to be respected, and no race could go to the Abzu, unless they wanted to. That is to say, this could only apply to humans and reincarnated souls which would have to possess only human bodies.

After much debate and many arguments that the leaders of the Galactic Confederation dealt with, this proposal was approved in its majority by the extraterrestrial races that feared humans for what happened with Jesus.

It should be noted that the Carians, the Pleiadeans, and Andromedans voted against it, because for them this was going against the resolution of the Kadistu. In the face of defeat, the Carians proposed to the General Assembly to take the most advanced humans on Earth at that time, and move them to the Abzu of Mars to continue their evolution without any type of manipulation, and, in that way, see how they freely evolved.

This was approved by a majority of extraterrestrial races that wanted to clean up a little their karma with the exception of the Reptilians who voted against it.

The Carians also invited the Intraterrestrials to the Abzu of Mars because it was uninhabited and, in that way, they could live in a larger planet coexisting with the humans that were moved there, and be out of all the manipulation that there would be on the surface of the Earth.

The Draconians were the most benefited from this decision, since they would be able to control their human farm without the obstacle of any extraterrestrial race.

And thus, it was born the Reptilian Pact, where the Draconians negotiated to share the spoils of the Earth with the Usumgal Anunnaki, and agreed to return a farm planet to the Kingu, which had been snatched away from them a long time ago. In exchange for ending the reptilian war.

In addition they came to the agreement that there was going to be a representative of the Kingu, two of the Draconians, and one of the Sutum at the Galactic Confederation.

In this same pact, they agreed with the Galactic Confederation that the Reptilians could not attack for any reason Mars, they could not enter the Abzu of Earth, they could not put at risk the existence of the human race, they could not mess with the Intraterrestrials, and in addition, they would leave the Pleiadeans as the only race that could control the Moon, among many other agreements.

This reptilian pact was going to change the history of humankind forever, and was going to place it in its darkest moment. And it would be the greatest test that we would have to deal with as humans. However, Jesus had already had foreseen all of this…

Enlil’s Big Fraud

When it was decided that the Earth would become a planet for testing the souls stuck in their evolution, this made the opportunity for the Reptilian Pact in which the Draconians agreed to share the subtle energies of humankind with the Anunnaki. Obviously, the most benefited with this were the Draconians, since they only had to pick up the subtle energies, while the Usumgal Anunnaki had to contact the Lulu humans to collect these negative energies, for which Anu demanded the Draconians to let him manipulate humankind at their will without their intervention to maximize these negative energies which would be shared between the two races.

The Draconians accepted and let the Anunnaki manipulate humankind at their will, because they had a hidden plan, since the Igigi, grey ones, who had been cloned in the moon of Jupiter, had passed the test of resistance of density and were ready to tolerate the Earth's atmosphere. With them, the Draconians could manipulate and study humans, as they were very interested in how their feelings worked, something that very few extraterrestrial races had, and no one had at our level. That makes us special in the universe because we are the only species able to express feelings at that level.

So they started to send these grey ones in a flying saucer, to begin with their mission. This deal of letting the Anunnaki freely manipulate humankind was the best opportunity that Enlil would have had to carry out his plan of becoming the only god of Earth, so he told his plan to Anu: Enlil wanted to expand his modified gospels, now, in the new continent so they would leave their polytheistic beliefs and be transformed into faithful followers of Yahweh.

Anu vehemently opposed to that, as the negative energies had increased thanks to the sacrifices and the beliefs of the Mesoamerican civilizations, so he wanted to continue like that as well. In addition, Anu told Enlil that by spreading the modified gospels, many people would send their energies to Jesus as the Son of Yahweh. And that would lower the uptake of energy. He suggested him to solve that problem before making any plan.

Enlil, annoyed by his father's decision, knew deep down that he was right because when putting together the story of Yahweh with the one of Jesus, and passing him as his son, many people would start to believe in Yahweh, but they would also believe in Jesus. And the energy would be divided in two, and this was not convenient for the Anunnaki.

Meanwhile, a group of Carians went to the Moon to ask the Pleiadeans what was the most advanced human race in those moments on Earth, according to their observations. The Pleiadeans replied that the Mesoamerican civilizations had an incredible potential, and were the fittest to be transferred to Mars and saved from the future manipulation.

Subsequently, the Carians went to Enki and asked his opinion in this regard. Enki said that the civilization that should be saved and transferred to Mars was the Mayas. The Carians held Enki to that and told him to communicate with the Mayas to ask them if they wanted to be saved and transferred to Mars. Enki communicated with the Mayas. In addition, he told them that they had been chosen to be saved.

The Maya leaders took this as a prophecy from their gods. So they asked the people if they wanted to be transferred out of the Earth. The vast majority agreed, and so it was that, from one day to the next, the Carians took the Maya, in a huge ship, along with eighty percent of the Intraterrestrials towards the Abzu of Mars. The other twenty percent of the remaining Intraterrestrials decided to stay in the Abzu of the Earth to preserve their home and continue studying humans. In addition, they already had the technology to reach Mars without problems.

Once they took out the Mayas and part of the Intraterrestrials from Earth, the Draconians started to work, and led the first grey ones to the region of Asia, since that was the part of the world that was less indoctrinated. Although the first gospels started to arrive, it was not yet defined their belief system. So the Draconians instructed the Igigi, grey ones, to communicate with the leaders of those regions and teach them a belief system totally different from those established by the Anunnaki.

And in the regions of the Middle East, who had begun to be indoctrinated with the Gospels, they began to change the name of the God Yahweh and Jesus. And it was this as they began to use names such as Zoroaster, Mohammed, Allah, etc. This was with the purpose for humankind not to worship only Yahweh, since that gave power to Enlil and allowed him to live double the time on average his race lived, which the Draconians tried to avoid at all costs. Obviously at the back of the Anunnaki in order not to look suspicious.

In the meantime, Enki contacted the members of the White Brotherhood, and proposed them to expand all over the world; that is to say, to create more brotherhoods around the world to try to stop all the manipulation that was coming.

It should be noted that the leaders of the White Brotherhood were the lineage of Jesus, who, following the teachings of their master, did not have any communication with the Anunnaki to avoid being manipulated. However, several members of the brotherhood could contact Enki through the phase and informed them about his proposal for expansion. The lineage of Jesus had already thought of expanding. And they decided it was a good idea due to the resolution that the Galactic Confederation had taken on turning the planet into a difficult test for humans.

So they started the expansion of this brotherhood, attracting more and more followers, and camouflaging with different names all over the planet in order not to be detected by the Anunnaki, all with the sole purpose of awakening humankind and to promote their evolution.

On the other hand, Anu, who was appointed by the Usumgal as the leader of their human farm, devoted himself to direct and coordinate the farm. He finally had the freedom to leave the fourth dimension and return when he wanted to. And, worried by the power that Jesus still had on Earth, he came up with an absurd idea, but if it worked out, it would diminish the influence of Jesus on Earth and multiply the negative energy captured by the Anunnaki.

Anu told Enlil to pass Yahweh as Jesus himself. Which meant the following: to merge them into a single person and not pass him as simply his son. Enlil, initially rejected the idea because the human indoctrination was already too advanced to make them believe at that point that Jesus was not the son of Yahweh, but Yahweh himself. Anu told him to find the way to do it, since by doing it, they would get great benefits, since people, while thinking of Jesus, would automatically think in Yahweh and all energies would be transferred to him.

After several Earth years thinking on this idea, Anu and Enlil, came to the conclusion that it was easier to say that the God Yahweh can do everything, and this is why he came to the Earth incarnated as his own son named Jesus. Enlil had many doubts about this because he did not believe that humankind was so innocent to believe that story.

Anu, fearing that this idea could not work, asked Enlil to divide this God into three persons and not in two, since Anu wanted to capture part of that energy and take power from his son. Thus, it was born the idea that God is divided into Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. The Holy Trinity. And they used all of their hybrids, and especially the Vatican, to try to put this new idea in the humans established in the European continent.

200 Earth years had passed by, and few things had changed on Earth. In America, the Mesoamerican cultures were still making sacrifices and wars in the name of their gods. In Asia, in what we now know as India and China, they began to be indoctrinated with new polytheistic ideas. In the Middle East, the teachings of the gospels were refuted and people there began to worship no longer Yahweh, but other gods with different names. And finally, in Europe, the idea that Yahweh is Jesus had not been accepted by people. No matter how much propaganda and changes in the gospel the Vatican did, humankind rejected this idea.

The power of Enlil, Yahweh, had declined dramatically although the negative energy remained stable. This terribly worried Enlil. So in a desperate act in 1184 AD, he instructed a hybrid, Pope Innocent III, head of the Vatican in that moment, to create a crusade in union with all the churches to prosecute and punish under penalty of death those who would not accept the idea that Yahweh and Jesus were the same. And that was the beginning of the Holy Inquisition, which condemned as heretics, witches, and shamans, to all the people who would not accept that Jesus and Yahweh were the same person. After some time, the Vatican practically had an army to hunt heretics and impose their idea.

At the beginning, Anu opposed to this idea, but seeing that the massacres and torture generated by this anti-heretics crusade generated a lot of negative energy, he let Enlil continue with his plan.

Enki could not believe what was happening on Earth, and although the White Brotherhood had saved many lives, he could never equal the army of the Vatican. Without any doubts, Enlil had taken an advantage out of reach.

While this was happening, the grey ones continued with their investigations and indoctrination at the back of the Anunnaki until on one occasion, the flying saucers were detected by several cigar-shaped ships of the Intraterrestrials, which, upon the ignorance of these ships and the fear of an unknown alien race invasion, did not hesitate to shoot them, and a battle started in the sky, which many people were able to witness at first sight, and which was set forth in paintings and books for posterity.

The Anunnaki, having realized of this battle, discovered that the Igigi were manipulating the beliefs of Asians, so Anu decided to put a complaint to the Galactic Confederation.

Upon the defeat of the Igigi against the Intraterrestrials and the threat of Anu to file a complaint to the Galactic Confederation, the Draconians decided to accept that they were the ones who had sent the grey ones, but simply to observe and study humans, without altering their free will, as the Intraterrestrials did. And managed to agree that the Igigi could continue with their studies, although the Anunnaki and Intraterrestrials did not trust the Draconians, they decided not to get into trouble with them and did not report anything to the Galactic Confederation.

Almost three hundred years after the imposition of the Holy Inquisition had passed, and it was beginning to produce its benefits. The belief that Jesus and Yahweh were the same person, was already rooted in Europe, and this had strengthened again Enlil. It had positioned him as a powerful deity on Earth.

Without any doubt, it had been a success. Only something was missing, the expansion of this idea all over the world…

The Origin of the Jesuits

When Anu and Enlil were able to implant the idea that Jesus was Yahweh himself, through the Holy Inquisition, this added a big amount of energy to Enlil. However, he wanted more. The wanted to be the God of the whole world. So he began to devise a plan to achieve it.

Anu, seeing that Enlil became increasingly powerful, decided to ask for help from one of his Anunnaki subjects who dominated the phase to communicate with humans at the back of Enlil, because his plan was to acquire the same power as him.

For their part, the White Brotherhood had already expanded to various parts of America, Asia, and Africa, creating secret lodges that aimed to raise awareness, consciousness, and the human spirit out of all religious dogma. That is why the apprentices called their master builders.

The original idea of Enki to create these lodges was to serve as an obstacle to any plan that would jeopardize the awakening of the conscience of humankind.

The Draconians, seeing that the negative energies coming from the European continent had decreased after the end of the Holy Inquisition, demanded the Usumgal Anunnaki to increase the recollection of the energy so that they would be at the same level of that of the American continent. On this pressure, Anu ordered Enlil to manipulate the humans of the European continent to start a war.

Enlil, annoyed with this idea, because he had to delay his personal plans, began to contact through the phase with a girl who was not a hybrid because he wanted to use their hybrids for his own interests. So, he established contact with this pure human and began to manipulate her to such a degree that he led her to lead one of the largest armies of those times. The name of this girl was Joan of Arc, who, carrying out all his battles, she believed that the voice she heard in her own dreams, was that of God himself, who gave her orders and guided her in his war.

With these clashes, Enlil managed to appease the demands of the Draconians and took advantage of, in secret, to put his plan on action to indoctrinate the entire American continent using his hybrids, the kings of Spain, to seek a man to sail their boats to the American continent. A continent unexplored and new to them, on the promise that those territories would be exploited and ruled by them. The only thing he asked was to take the modified gospels and religious beliefs to this new world.

The Spanish kings, believing faithfully in the promises of their god, saw in Christopher Columbus the right person to make this journey. And so it was that in 1492, Columbus arrived in America following the path indicated by the kings, with the sole purpose of appropriating all the natural resources of this new continent, and indoctrinate all people to believe in Yahweh, the one God in the world.

It is worth mentioning that Enki, years before of the discovery of this new continent by the Europeans, tried to warn the Mesoamerican cultures to prepare for this meeting, and not to be manipulated. Since Enki had listened to a conversation in which Enlil revealed this plan to Anu. These warnings of Enki were taken as prophecies that unfortunately occurred in 1492.

Enlil knew that the conquest and indoctrination of America would cost a lot of time and effort, so he decided to act fast. He ordered his hybrids, the kings, to send armies to seize the territories and propagate their religion. The Kings, always obedient, sent an army led by Hernan Cortes.

After almost thirty years of battles, Enlil realized that the Mesoamericans, in spite of not having the technology the Europeans had, were very intelligent and did not surrender so easily. Even more, the casualties of the Spain army were so many that he foresaw an imminent defeat. Desperate, he contacted a leader of the Spanish army and gave him instructions to create bacteriological diseases, implanting viruses such as smallpox, measles, influenza, the bubonic plague, diphtheria, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, chicken pox, yellow fever, etc., so that they would spread silently between the indigenous and ensure victory. It should be noted that he also gave him the vaccines for the Spanish Army to resist these diseases.

With this act, the balance started leaning in his favor. And he got the Spaniards to take an advantage out of reach.

Anu, seeing this move of Enlil, began to accelerate his plans to diminish his power. In addition, he had already discovered that Enki, was in contact with a group of people who followed the teachings of Jesus, and had created secret societies, imperceptible to the Anunnaki domain to put obstacles in their plans. So he decided to kill two birds with one stone, his plan was to:

Create a secret society that would manipulate governments and world religions from the shadows and, thus, to be able to make decisions that would benefit him. In addition, he wanted to destroy the lodges of the White Brotherhood, which were helped by Enki.

So in 1540, almost 50 years after the new world, Anu decided it was time to put his plan on action. And informed a man who had the gift of listening to them, and to whom they had already tested some time ago. This man was Ignatius of Loyola, a Spanish military and religious fanatic, characterized mainly by their devotion to the Catholic Church, and by absolute obedience to the Pope. This man easily manipulable was influenced to create a secret society called "The Company of Jesus" on September, 27 of 1540; all in the name of his god. What is curious is that the statutes of this company, designed by Anu himself, and handed over to Loyola, considered the infiltration within other secret lodges for their destruction or seizure from the inside. In addition to seizing the power of governments, through infiltration and espionage.

With this, Anu tried to seize the secret lodges of the White Brotherhood, which at that time were already known as Freemasonry and which had grown rapidly around the world, and thus, tried to curb their power, in addition to infiltrate the largest number of people in governments and religions to manipulate them from the shadows. This company of Jesus had the blessing of the Pope himself, and was soon known as the Jesuits and spread like a cancer within the Masonic and European governments, getting great power in very little time. This master move granted him control over the human Lulus, Enlil, and Enki without realizing it.

While this was happening, European governments like France and Portugal, upon knowing of the new continent, they began to send troops to try to stay with a piece of the pie. This actually was of no interest to Enlil, as his sole purpose was to indoctrinate the Mesoamericans, and those countries also preached the gospels modified by Enlil.

The Draconians worried that their captured energy could decrease by everything that was happening in Uras, Earth, told Anu that they did not agree that humans had only one God since that would lower their negative energy. Anu told them they had to respect the free will of humans. And that would ensure that the negative energy remained constant.

The Draconians suspected that the Usumgal Anunnaki had influenced this to happen, so they decided to focus on the Asian countries that were more populated and sent more grey ones in their flying saucers to accelerate the indoctrination of these people in religions that were totally different from those promulgated by Enlil.

It took almost two hundred years for the indoctrination of America to be achieved, and they turned from a polytheistic religion to a monotheistic one, taking Yahweh as maximum God. Although it should be noted that, due to the mixture of these two religions, humans also began to worship saints and virgins of all kinds. Something that did not bother Enlil, as long as they deemed Yahweh as the maximum god.

The secret societies of the White Brotherhood were the only ones which stayed out of this indoctrination, and faithfully followed the teachings of Jesus.

Enki had already realized that something strange was going on in the lodges of Europe since several times they had made decisions that did not stick to the teachings of Jesus, though he did not suspect that the Jesuits, the order created by Ignatius of Loyola, were behind all of this.

Jesus, seeing that humankind began again to decrease their vibrational frequencies got ready to send the first wave of consciousness from the fifth dimension…

The Origin of Illuminati

At the beginning of 1700, the Jesuits had already infiltrated into the vast majority of Masonic lodges in Europe changing their precepts of equality for following their own interests, or better said, the interests of Anu.

The only remaining free lodges were the lodges in Asia, South America, and the Great Lodge of Egypt, which kept at the tight seal to new followers.

Enki knew something was wrong because his instructions were not observed by the European lodges, and had realized that they did not follow the precepts of Jesus, but now they performed strange occultist rituals. He sensed that Anu or Enlil had put their hand on them. So he decided to investigate what had happened.

Enlil, realized that his Chosen People, the Zionist Jews, were less and less, because they were treated as a minority in Europe, and roamed from country to country without any success. This caused many adherents to drop out and believe in other religions such as the Catholic one. This, although in reality did not affect much Enlil, due to the fact that he controlled these two religions, was an alert for him, as he needed a group of humans totally faithful to him to continue with his plans. So he decided to carry on with the promise he had made hundreds of years before and gave them the secret of power: the economic power in the world.

Enlil contacted the Zionist leaders and told them that in order to gain the economic power of the world and grow as the Chosen People, they only had to follow a rule: lend money without interest or fixed term to all Zionists that needed it, and when they had the possibility to pay, they would have to do it. With this simple rule, the Zionists began to run countless businesses, and in a very short time, they managed to have large amounts of money, which they took advantage of to make loans to people who were not Jewish, charging an interest for this. The first bankers had come to light.

It is amazing that, by following this simple rule of their God, Yahweh, Zionist Jews had obtained the economic power in the world today.

Seeing all the chaos that there was on Earth and that the evolution was totally paralyzed, Jesus decided to send a shock wave of consciousness from the fifth dimension. So he contacted the Pleiadeans and the Carians so that they could project this shock wave and spread it all over the Earth.

The Pleiadeans, with the help of the Carians, used the Moon to store all this energy and subsequently spread it on the Earth in doses that were digestible for humans. This led to a cultural and intellectual movement throughout the world, which would help humankind to advance and promote their evolution.

The Pleiadeans began to spread this clash of conscience in the European continent, and in the middle of the 17th century, it was born the Illustration or Century of the Gods, named in this way for its declared objective to dispel the darkness from humankind through the lights of reason.

At this time, thanks to the Conscious Shock, sent by Jesus, great thinkers, and inventors who believed in the idea that human knowledge could combat ignorance, superstition, and tyranny, to build a better world were born.

The Illustration had a great influence on the scientific, economic, political, and social aspects at that time. Anu, Enlil, and Enki himself were surprised by all the advances in the technology, social and political system that the European continent had reached, and they suspected that the human Lulus were being helped in some way by the Pleiadeans.

Enki saw in this situation an opportunity to take power from the human hybrids, faithful to Enlil, who served as kings in the European continent, and instructed the Masonic lodges to get ready to create several revolutions and, thus, definitely deprive kings of power.

Anu, upon noticing the plans of Enki, decided to support him with his Jesuits infiltrators, since one of the goals of Anu was to take power away from Enlil, and he knew that by taking away the power of the kings, Enlil would feel decimated, and would open a window of opportunity for Anu to get the power of the European continent. However, he knew that in order to achieve this, he did not only have to have the Jesuits infiltrated in most of the Masonic lodges, but he had to control a masonic society himself. So, he instructed his subject Anunnaki to convince a Jesuit to create a secret society under the rituals and precepts of Anu.

This Anunnaki subject got in contact with a German Jesuit of Jewish origin named Johann Adam Weishaupt, who, following the orders of his god, managed to convince the German banker, Mayer Amschel Bauer, best known as the founder of the Rothschild dynasty, to finance a secret society that would have as main objectives: the creation of a world government with a single religion, a single currency, the prohibition of private property, and the abolition of all monarchies. And so it was that the first of May, 1776, in the middle of the Night of Walpurgis (pagan festivity on the night of April 30 to May 1 by large regions of Central and Northern Europe), was born the order of the Illuminati of Bavaria, which afterward would be known as the Illuminati.

This would be the first Masonic lodge outside of any influence of Enki and the Brotherhood of the White Dragon. This was totally controlled by Anu.

Enki, who was unaware of all these plans of Anu and Enlil, by chance, he found out all of this, since a lightning bolt struck one of the messengers of Weishaupt and the Government of Bavaria realized that this secret society planned to abolish all the monarchies of the world and overtake the power the kings, so Enlil decided to take matters into his own hands, and instructed the Catholic Church and the Government of Bavaria, and after that, all Europe, to prohibit and chase down the organization of the Illuminati and all secret societies that existed.

This witch-hunt lasted until 1785 when this society "supposedly" faded away completely. Something that was not true, since Anu, after realizing that he could not beat the power of the governments and the Catholic Church under the control of Enlil, decided to deceive him, and move the last of the members of the Illuminati to the new continent, specifically to the United States, which, later, would become the last world empire.

Enki seeing this persecution of the secret societies decided to accelerate his plans. And using the Masonic lodges, started the French Revolution in 1789, a social and political conflict with various periods of violence that destabilized France and sought the abolition of the monarchy, which would end up years later with the coup d'état of Napoleon Bonaparte in 1799, who would be controlled afterward by Enlil…

Enki’s First Great Victory

With the birth of the Illuminati and the persecution and destruction of the secret societies thanks to Enlil, Enki took advantage of this to mobilize the freemasonry in America and promote the great revolutions that would generate the independence of the American countries, getting rid once and for all, of the oppression exerted by the European countries on them.

Enki knew it was the perfect time, since the shock wave sent by Jesus not only led to the Enlightenment and the technological and scientific progress of humankind, but also inspired the human community a sense of justice and freedom, and he had to take advantage of it, and so did it: starting with the United States where the human Lulus fought for their freedom in a long lasting conflict.

Obviously Enlil was not going to allow him to take this country out of its control. So, he sent several troops from their most powerful countries, but due to the distance and the enormous cost to send troops by sea, he was not able to preserve that country, and on July 4, 1776, the United States became independent from the British Empire.

Enlil was worried, because, with this defeat, he had lost his power in America, while in Europe things were not going better, since in France, conflict and violent manifestations were growing day by day; and that, coupled with the war victories of the mason, Napoleon Bonaparte, put him in a difficult situation.

Anu took advantage of the independence of the United States and Enlil's distraction, and transferred the surviving members of his secret society, the Illuminati of Bavaria, who lived hidden in Europe to the new free country of America. The ancestors of the Illuminati went to America at the end of 1700. Their purpose was to start the infiltration in Freemasonry to control it from within and so stop the progress of Enki to create a fairer and free place.

In the year 1799, Napoleon Bonaparte made a coup d'État in France, causing a harsh blow to Enlil, who was watching his power rapidly declining. He had learned two very important things with this defeat: the first was that the conspiracy and organization through secret societies were fundamental to get power or take it away from their holder; and the second learnt lesson was that human Lulus were not so easy to enslave. He recalled thousands of years ago, a Lulu attacked a hybrid causing a revolution and awakening in those times.

Enlil, desperate, asked Anu for help, proposing to create a secret society to help diminish the power of his brother Enki, and stop his plans. Anu replied that thanks to his stupid decision of destroying all the secret societies in Europe, he could not help him. However, Anu said that he would take care of the American continent, and the only thing that Enlil had to worry about was to regain power in Europe.

It should be emphasized that Anu did not say at that moment that, in reality, he continued to control the Jesuits and Illuminati, because he wanted to use them not only to stop to Enki, but also to seize Enlil's power from the shadow.

At the refusal of his father, Enlil planned to create a secret society with the most faithful members of his chosen people, however, this plan was postponed because, unexpectedly, when entering phase, and establishing communication with one of his followers, he discovered that Napoleon Bonaparte, although he did not dominate the phase, he could get into it through his dreams. It was then, that he decided to manipulate him by putting on him ideas of power. Little by little he realized that his plan worked because Napoleon had a big ego and that made him someone easily influenced.

The achievement of Enlil was to convince him to create a world empire and, in little more than a decade, Napoleon managed to take control of almost the entire Western and Central Europe, through a series of conquests and alliances. This increased the power of Enlil, and the negative energy captured for the Draconians.

Enki, seeing the betrayal of Napoleon, realized that his followers and members of the White Brotherhood, the White Dragon, and Masonry, were also impressionable and could change sides at any time. So, from that moment on, he instructed the brotherhood of the White Dragon to remain totally sealed and closed to new members, leaving the door only open to initiates who inherited the right to a place there, for example: children or relatives or people who, by their acts to humankind, would earn their place with an invitation. Since that moment, the Brotherhood of the White Dragon became the most secret society all over the world.

But if the ego of Napoleon led him to conquer almost all of Europe, it was also his ego what led him to lose his empire, since, feeling protected by his god who communicated with him in dreams, he thought himself invincible. However, his losses in Leipzig in October 1813 and Waterloo, in Belgium, on 18 July 1815, marked his exile to the island of St. Helena where he died in absolute solitude.

Enlil learned a third lesson with the defeat of Napoleon: he realized that the human Lulus were capable of doing anything for power, even kill and exterminate their own species. That was something that he was going to take advantage of from now on.

The Draconians were still using the grey ones to study humans, and had already realized that a small amount of mutated Lulus had a gene in the brain that made them smarter, cold and calculating, unable to feel affection for another human being. The humans were more similar to the Reptilians than the mammals.

They also discovered that they were easily traceable, as they always had negative blood ORH. These humans are the ones that we know nowadays as psychopaths.

The Draconians were more and more surprised with the things humans were capable of transmitting through their feelings. However, ha had not yet found the key to be able to transfer that feature to the reptilian race. However, this discovery could help them increase the energy collected on their farm. So they decided to pass such information to Anu for him to look for those Lulus with negative blood ORH and so that they could be manipulated more easily.

This information was perfectly suitable for Anu, because this gave him a definite advantage against Enlil.

Enki decided to accelerate his plans for the liberation of America and, using the masonry that still was not influenced by the Jesuits, he achieved the independence of Mexico, started on September 16, 1810, by the Cry of Dolores (considered the act with which the war of Independence of Mexico started. According to the tradition, it consisted in the call to arms that the priest Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, in the company of Ignacio Allende, Juan Aldama, made to his followers against New Spain) that the mason Miguel Hidalgo gave and culminated with the entrance of the Army to Mexico City on 27 September 1821.

Enki continued releasing all South America using freemasons as Simon Bolívar to take the power from the Spanish, English and French empires, and thus, restore freedom to the American continent. Of course, Enlil was not going to let this last for a long time.

The Galactic Confederation, for its part, totally forgot the planet Uras, Earth, since they only regarded it as another prison planet. Where, by the way, the thousand five hundred souls incarnated on the Earth had not been able to get out of it, what reassured them that the Earth was the most difficult test planet of all they had in their possession. Although the Confederation had forgotten the Earth, it was constantly monitored from the Moon, as they feared that another Jesus came up. That is why they granted the control to the Draconians so that it does not happen again.

On Earth it was 1830 AD, and the shock wave of awareness that Jesus had sent from the fifth dimension was about to come to an end, and this concerned Enki, since, despite the progress made by humankind, they were not aware enough to achieve their true freedom. In addition, he knew that Enlil and Anu were planning something to regain all their power…

The Beautiful Dream of Tesla

Anu took advantage of the infiltration through his followers, the Jesuits in Freemasonry to corrupt it and control it from within. In addition, he commissioned them to infiltrate into the Illuminati of Bavaria, from Europe in positions of power of the new American government to seize it.

In the meantime, Enlil, led his Chosen People, the Zionists, to get the economic power of all Europe, by controlling the banking and commerce in general of all that area, led of course by the Rothschild dynasty.

The wave of awareness sent by Jesus was extended to the beginning of 1900 when it would finally end. This would be exploited by Anu and Enlil to start an era of darkness manipulated by them, since they knew that Jesus would take approximately one hundred Earth years to send the next shock wave of awareness; however, just before the end of this shock wave on Earth, there were born great geniuses that would completely change the history of humankind, and precisely on July 10, 1856, it was born one of the brightest minds that has lived in this planet, his name, Nikola Tesla, a soul incarnated on this prison planet that was experiencing its second reincarnation. This helped him to be more perceptible to the Shock Wave of Awareness and endowed him with great intelligence. His great creativity led him to become one of the best inventors in history, with thousands of patents under his name that helped him to completely change the life of humankind, such as for example the discovery of the alternating current that we use in our daily life.

In addition, he invented a type of radio device that could pick up signals of the Moon emitted by the Pleiadeans that controlled it, and in a short time, he managed to decode them to start receiving messages from them.

The Pleiadeans took advantage of this conversation with Tesla to provide him with a lot of knowledge that would help to improve the living conditions of humankind through technology. This helped Nikola to create plenty of very advanced devices for his time. For example, x-rays or electrical transmission without wires.

However, despite being a very bright mind, the ruling elite of the time was always in opposition to him; and he always was in a bad economic situation. Thomas Edison, for example, had him working for several years, stealing several patents and inventions that were not his. Their rivalry reached a peak in the famous War of the Currents, in which Edison supported the Continuous Current and Tesla the Alternating Current, winning the alternating current because it was more effective and more economical. Since then, Edison, characterized by a big ego, always tried to humiliate him and crush him with all the power available at the time.

Due to the lack of money, Tesla did not have another choice but to create weapons for the army, as the famous Death Ray, a lethal weapon that was capable of firing a ray at a great distance, destroying everything in its path. Fortunately, the Pleiadeans advised him that he should deliver that weapon, but with a failure so that it was not used. So he did. And in the demonstration, it was a great success, and he received the agreed payment, however, at the time of delivery, this did not work. This caused the rivalry with the government of the U. S., which from that moment began to constantly monitor him.

Tesla had a dream: to be able to transmit energy for free to all over the world without wires through a tower that was emitting electromagnetic waves. And he almost achieved it, with the famous Wardenclyffe Tower project, funded by the banker J.P. Morgan, a member of the Illuminati of Bavaria.

Although, all these great inventions on Earth did not arouse the minimum interest in the Anunnaki, because each one was concerned to implement their own agenda.

When Anu realized that Tesla could provide the world with energy for free, he quickly instructed his Illuminati subjects to stop this, because his plan was that humans devastated the Earth's natural resources up to the point at which the planet reduced the population itself, up to the point of putting an end to its own illness, that is to say, us, because if Anu could not convince humans to destroy each other through free will to keep us under control, they could slip out of his manipulation. So he devised a plan B for the destruction of the planet so the Earth reduced the population in the near future. Such a master plan…

J.P. Morgan, following the orders of the Illuminati of Bavaria, decided to cancel the construction of the tower, leaving unfinished, and the dream of Tesla, under the pretext that this project was not going to give him any economic benefit.

Tesla tried to convince him that he could charge a modest amount of energy to consumers if he wished so, but to let him finish. Morgan, obviously, was not convinced and left unfinished the work that would have changed the history of humankind completely.

The elite of those times, infiltrated by the Illuminati of Bavaria, made sure to erase the name of Nikola Tesla from the history. They even took credit for the invention of the radio and gave it to Marconi, even when after his death, in the 1960s, Supreme Court of the United States dictated that the patent on the radio was rightfully the property of Tesla, legally recognizing him as the inventor of this. Although, this was hidden by the Elite so that the world did not know it.

Tesla died on January 7, 1943, in poverty and absolute solitude, and since then, the US government took the patents of this huge genius.

In the face of all these scientific and technological advances of humankind, it was obvious that the negative energy received from the humans had decreased considerably. The Draconians did not like this, and they sent a contingent to visit the Usumgal Anunnaki to demand them to increase the negative energies from their farm or their agreement would come to an end.

At this threat, Anu decided to abide by the order and explained that the drop in energy harvesting, was due to a clash of a wave of awareness coming from the fifth dimension, however, it was already over. They had been free to increase the chaos on Earth, and therefore, the negative energy of the Lulus. He predicted a significant increase in the coming years on Earth, and he was quite right!

Like Nikola Tesla, at the end of the Clash of the Wave of Awareness, it was born another embodied soul, more exactly, in its third incarnation on Earth. This soul would acquire the gift of Oratory, and this would change the history. His name was Adolf Hitler…

H i t l e r

While Tesla registered hundreds of patents, Enlil uses an opportunity to communicate with a British man who could use the phase, his name, Aleister Crowley, born on October 12, 1875, and heir to a large fortune after the death of his father.

Aleister represented a great opportunity for Enlil to create various secret societies that followed his occult teachings, and thus, not to depend on his Chosen People to impose his plans. In addition, for a long time, he had been wanting to create hidden societies to match his father, Anu.

Crowley fulfilled its role magnificently because his devotion to the occult teachings led him to fanaticism. Enlil introduced himself to Crowley with the name of Aiwass or Baphomet, since he did not want to be associated with Yahweh or with his Anunnaki past. Aleister Crowley initially tried to take control of a secret society called the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, the famous Golden Dawn, which followed the teachings of the White Brotherhoods. However, when he could not impose his ideas, he left the Order and created his own occultist society, Astrum Argentum, also reaching to the level of being the visible head of other secret societies such as the OTO, Ordo Templi Orientis, among others.

Enlil manipulated Crowley teaching him diverse knowledge of magic under the maximum premise of overcoming materialism and food of the ego, with pleasant sensations in the body without the intervention of feelings and destroying the spirit.

Aleister created a series of laws called Thelema, and also wrote a book called The Book of the Law, which was based on a single premise: "Do what thou wilt".

Modern Satanism was born. The success of Crowley was such that even following the instructions of his manipulator, Enlil, he attempted to open a portal in the United States for which the Anunnaki could communicate with the entire population without the need for the phase. Fortunately, he failed.

Enlil realized that what had been achieved by Crowley not only had to stay among the followers of his doctrine in the secret societies, but it had to replicate on the entire population, since, if he could make people simply concerned about feeding their banal desires, this would destroy their spirit and their connection with the Source of Origin. So he began to devise a plan to achieve this so that people would accept it little by little without realizing it.

Enki, realizing that Nikola Tesla was being boycotted by the global elite, tried to use to a German with the ability to convince, with which, he had managed to contact through the phase fortuitously, because this man had the ability to enter the phase unconsciously, his name, Adolf Hitler, a soul incarnated on Earth suffering its third incarnation. He was born on April 20, 1889, and since very child, he was severely beaten by his father, Alois. This was critical to mark the cold and isolated personality that would mark the whole life of Adolf.

Enki established his first communication with Adolf, and it was accidentally since Enki was trying to communicate with a member of the White Brotherhood. However, he realized that Hitler could hear him. Out of curiosity, Enki observed the young Adolf Hitler had dropped out of school and was engaged in painting pictures. Just when Enki was losing interest in him, Hitler was giving a speech in the public square where he spoke of a hidden power that handled the governments like puppets. But this was not what drew the most attention to Enki, but to see his little audience listening attentively as if they were hypnotized. At that moment, Enki realized that Hitler was the person he was looking for. His plan was to take advantage of the endowments of conviction that he had to awaken people, and finally get rid of the control and manipulation of the government in the shadows that controlled Anu and Enlil. His first step was inviting him to his secret society of Thule, which took him one Earth year to convince him. There, Enki realized the harsh personality of Hitler.

Once entering this secret society, controlled by Enki, Hitler began to receive hidden knowledge that would help him improve his gift of Oratory and conviction of the masses; in addition, it was revealed to him that the world was ruled from the shadows by Zionism, the Chosen People of Enlil. This aroused in Hitler a deep anti-Semitic feeling. Although Enki had no doubt of the oratory features of Hitler, he had doubts with regards to his cold personality, he saw psychopathic traits in him. Although for the liberation of humankind, it was worth the risk.

While Hitler was being trained, Anu, pressured by the Draconians, began to move all the secret societies under his command, to start a war on a global scale never seen before.

And that is how on July 28, 1914, the First World War began, which took the lives of more than nine million people. Something that triggered the increased uptake of the negative energy of the human farm in the history of the Earth, not only because of the conflict itself, and the deaths but also of the fear the world lived in thanks to the press that gave details of this Great War. The Draconians were happy.

With this war, Anu showed the power of having secret societies under his control, as he had managed them in such secret, that neither Enki nor Enlil could realize it.

At this dark world panorama, Enki began to move the White Brotherhoods that he still controlled, without the influence of the Jesuits, and let this conflict last only four years. In addition to the opportunity to put Hitler on the world scene, since he knew that with his speeches and oratory he was not going to get far. He had to empower him. That is to say, give Hitler power so his speeches would liberate all humankind. So, he convinced Hitler to enroll in the army, since that was the only way to rise to power. As with unfinished studies and on a low income, he could not think of another way.

At the end of the First World War, it began Hitler's meteoric rise to power, which put in check the plans of Enlil and Anu, since he was about to put an end to the international Zionism.

But why he did not get it? What was the error of Hitler? How did he get so quickly to power? To whom did the Second World War benefit? For whom did Hitler really worked…?

The Consequences of a Bad Choice

At the end of the First World War, Hitler had not made much progress in his military career, so Enki began to connect him with various members of secret societies who were occupying strategic positions in the German government. And thanks to the great power of conviction of Hitler, he quickly started gaining friends who provided his rise to power.

As well as Hitler increased the number of friends in positions of power, it also increased his ego, because he felt he was a sort of chosen one who could talk to God. Because he believed that the communication he had with Enki, in reality, was with God himself. This increased his self-confidence and thirst for power to the point of, in the year 1923, he had already related and fully into the German politics, and counting with a large number of friends who supported him, attempted a very improvised coup d'état, which was called the Munich, but it failed, and he was sentenced to five years in prison.

This concerned Enki, because he realized that the psychopathy and thirst for power of Hitler were growing more and more. So, during his time in prison, Enki tried to convince him that his mission was to liberate humankind and not only to obtain power, and apparently, he did so, but not for long.

Upon his releasing, Germany was undergoing an important economic and social crisis. There was much violence in the streets and people had the feeling that the government was incapable of ruling, which led to a power absence and general discontent. This opened the doors for Hitler and his National Socialist Party to rise to power in 1933 as the last and only salvation for the German, as these were worried about the loss of their material goods and their work opportunities.

Although, it should be noted that all this atmosphere of chaos in Germany was caused precisely by the members of the White Dragon, all with the aim of giving a chance to Hitler. The early years of government of the Fuehrer were very prosperous for Germany. The job offer increased considerably and the economy was growing. The crisis was over.

The Fuehrer used the secret symbolism that he learned at the secret society of Thule to hypnotize the masses, taking up the symbol of the black sun as the logo of his political party. His fanaticism for the occultism was such that he even started a campaign to search for objects of power as the Ark of the Covenant or the Lance of Longinus since he believed that having them, his power would be such that he could become immortal.

Enki, seeing the speeches that hypnotized thousands of Germans, was convinced that Hitler was the right person. His plan was to liberate the German first, and then. All the other countries. Even though he did not know how to do it.

While all this was happening in Germany, Enlil was working on a secret plan to zombify the whole world and began to contact several scientists, members of the secret lodges, to create a device capable of transmitting images to all over the world. It took a long time, until finally, Philo T. Farnsworth, an American follower of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, created by Enlil, succeeded in creating the first electronic image dissector in 1927, which, afterward would be refined and known as the television. One of the most prolific inventions to achieve control of humankind.

Upon finding this out, Enki saw a great opportunity to convey the messages of the Fuehrer to all over the world and, thus, achieve waking them up. Hitler had not called the attention of Anu and Enlil until the Fuehrer decided to ban the banks belonging to the Rothschild in Germany. This quickly sounded the alarms of Anu and Enlil, who realized of everything he was doing in Germany and discovered that Enki was behind this.

Enlil proposed Anu to end up Hitler as he represented a major threat to their plans. However, Anu marveled at the oratory and conviction skills that the Fuehrer had, he decided to establish contact with him to convince him of everything contrary to what Enki had taught him. This was not very difficult, as Hitler, entering the phase unconsciously, could establish contact with any Anunnaki who wanted to.

Anu began to manipulate Hitler, telling him that the only way to defeat Zionism was to destroy it throughout the world, taking advantage of the big ego and thirst for power of Hitler, it was not very difficult to convince him. And, in order Enki did not suspect anything, he instructed Enlil to pretend a few failed attacks against Hitler so that Enki thought that they were trying to assassinate him to remove the Illuminati banks from Germany.

This misled Enki, who did not notice this secret plan of Anu, although he realized that Hitler was investing a large part of the taxes to increase his army. Hitler confused by the voices that he listened when he entered the phase, was convinced that the Holy Trinity was talking to him and that he was protected by God because all the attacks against him always failed. Although his army and weapons had increased significantly, they were not enough to achieve the goal of creating a huge empire and destroy Zionism altogether. So, Anu advised him to get the support of Prescott Bush, a man of Wall Street that served as the nominee of the Illuminati, for Hitler not to suspect it, who could sell him the weapons and oil required to carry out his plan.

This was the big mistake of Hitler, having accepted the foreign funding to carry out his plans, as in doing so, he became immediately in their slave.

Anu had planned everything to create a great conflict at a global level, with which the negative energies captured would increase again. And that was how on September 1, 1939, the Second World War started with the German invasion of Poland.

Since the end of 1939 until the beginning of 1941, Germany produced a series of dazzling military campaigns and treaties, with which he conquered and subdued much of continental Europe. During the Second World War, the German army massacred more than 100,000 Jews and more than 10,000 gypsies. And conducted several experiments with them. Although after this war, the winners inflated these figures in the history books.

Germany had already conquered much of Europe. However, Bush prohibited Hitler to attack Switzerland, central of the Rothschild Illuminati banks, because if he did it, weapons and oil would end. Then, the German army crossed Switzerland without touching anything. Switzerland, without an army, was easy to conquer, but he did not do so out of fear that his funding ended.

In this second Great War at a global level, Anu not only was as a spectator but he also mobilized the grey ones into their flying saucers to achieve victories that he saw convenient. That is to say, he left nothing to chance. He was also anxious for the United States to enter the war, and thus, be able to test a weapon the Illuminati were financing. So he convinced his subjects infiltrated in the U.S. government to let Japan attack them so that they had the perfect pretext to enter into this war. Japan fell into the trap and attacked Pearl Harbor without any resistance in 1941, and the United States entered the world war.

With this Great War, the Draconians were ecstatic, because, with this great World War II, the Usumgal Anunnaki had tripled the energy captured from their human farm.

Enki was disappointed and felt responsible for the behavior of Hitler and the great world war that he had caused. He was increasingly losing hope in human beings. Although, he later realized that Anu was behind all this.

The Great War ended in 1945 with the alleged suicide of Hitler and the explosion of the atomic bombs in Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

In reality, the Fuehrer, made a deal with the allies to let him live and escape to Argentina where he lived for many years, in exchange for his most prominent scientists and technologies were donated to the victorious power nations of war. This was how the dream of Enki to liberate humankind came to an end.

The explosion of nuclear bombs alerted the Intraterrestrials who went to the Galactic Confederation to explain the situation and ask permission to attack human beings, because, in their view, these jeopardized the integrity of planet Uras, Earth…

The Great Lie of the Arrival to the Moon

At the end of the Second World War, the United Nations (UN) was founded. In 1945, representatives of 50 countries met in San Francisco to write the Charter of the United Nations. Obviously, this new organization was full of Zionist leaders and Illuminati, which opened the door for the Zionism to claim the state of Israel as their Promised Land, since, in 1948, the UN assigned the State of Israel to the Zionists.

Finally, the Zionism had a territory of its own and was at the top of the world power. The promise of their God Yahweh, Enlil, made thousands of years ago, had been fulfilled.

The Intraterrestrials, who were in the Abzu of the Earth, decided to file a complaint to the Galactic Confederation through the Carians, because for them the Second World War, provoked by humans, and the use of atomic bombs, jeopardized the health of the planet Uras, Earth, and they requested permission to intervene against human beings.

The Galactic Confederation decided to give humans another opportunity, because, for them, the atomic bomb was not as powerful to put on risk the planet Earth, their prison planet. But they did approve the Carians and Intraterrestrials to tell the world leaders that in case of another war, on a global scale, with atomic weapons, they would get involved. And so it was that in the year 1947, in a secret meeting with world leaders at the time, the Carians and Intraterrestrials warned them about the risk of having another confrontation on a large scale using mass destruction weapons.

This was a radical change in human history, which opened the doors to other extraterrestrial races to get in contact with the human race for their own interests. For example, the grey ones, who wanted to get rid of the Reptilians, made a secret pact with the US government when, in 1947, a ship of the grey ones crashed in Roswell and was captured by the Government of the United States. Since then, the grey ones made a deal with them to allow them to carry out abductions of people to conduct different genetic experiments for the creation of hybrids that could live infiltrated into humankind and, thus, get rid of the reptilian control. All in exchange for alien technology to give them an advantage over the other countries.

On the one hand, the Insectoids sent a contingent to the Earth and made contact with the leaders of the Soviet Union and made a deal with them for the extraction of natural resources in exchange of alien technology.

With these deals, the grey ones and the Insectoids made sure not to violate the law of free will. Since then, up to now, the Exopolitics (hypothetical political relations between aliens and humans), has marked the history of humankind.

With the progress achieved by the Soviet Union and the United States, they started an arms race to see which was the world superpower. Which developed into the famous Cold War, which was a political, economic, military, and scientific confrontation between the Western capitalist bloc, led by the United States, and the Eastern Communist Party, led by the Soviet Union.

It is known as the Cold War since none of the two blocks ever took direct action against the other. The Anunnaki took advantage of this and continued making human sacrifices for the recollection of negative energies and thus, they created conflicts, such as the Greek Civil War, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, The First War in Afghanistan, the Civil War in Lebanon, the war in Angola, the Indo-Pakistani War, The Gulf War, etc., and therefore, continued to feed the Draconians in a more discreet and subtle way.

While this conflict was carried out, and humankind was in constant fear, the television began to become popular throughout the world. And soon, the Dark Elite, advised by Enlil, realized that it was an artifact with which they could manipulate the opinion and thoughts of people. In other words, the Elite began to use television to zombify humankind.

The United States and the Soviet Union were also engaged in a Space Race, which began with the launch of the Sputnik 1 in 1957, the first human artifact capable of reaching space and orbiting the planet itself. The first milestone in the space race was achieved by the Soviets since in the same year, they launched the Sputnik 2. And inside the ship, the first living being came out into space: a Kudriavka dog, named Layka, who died seven hours after getting out of the atmosphere.

The next milestone was also achieved by the Soviets by launching in 1961 the Vostok 1, manned by Yuri Gagarin, the first human being to go to space and return safe and sound.

In the face of such disadvantage, and to justify the waste of taxes in the creation of NASA, the US government decided to deceive the whole world with a false arrival to the Moon to gain an advantage against the Soviet Union. And for this, they would use television, the new invention to manipulate society as a whole.

So, they decided to hire Stanley Kubrick to film this show in a Hollywood studio, with which, they were able to deceive the whole world. Obviously with the support of the Illuminati, who were interested in implementing capitalism throughout the world so as to continue increasing their economic power.

It is no surprise that the craft that reached the moon had the name of Apollo "11", a Kabbalistic number of the Illuminati.

Although it should be noted that Kubrick regretted of this great deception and left us many messages in his films for us to decipher (like the movie that was based on the book "The Shining", written by the brilliant writer Stephen King), which it cost him his life.

This American victory, with the false arrival to the Moon, was the beginning of the decline of the Soviet Union. But, how it was that this superpower lost the Cold War and dissolved so fast? What was the covenant they made...?

The Destiny of the Human Farm

After the tremendous blow and the destruction of the dream of implanting the communism throughout the world of the Soviet Union, this was only an experiment conducted by the Illuminati to measure the power of manipulation that the television had in those moments.

This device was able to convince all people of what they wanted. Basically, the television could rewrite history to suit themselves. Since then, the elite began to invest large amounts of money in the world of entertainment, both in television, like cinema and music, etc.

Enlil, seeing the power of influence in humans of television, decided that his Chosen People would become the administrators of the world entertainment, giving them all the television companies and Hollywood, with which he would manipulate the thoughts of humankind. While Anu gave the control of the world economy to the Illuminati and to the Jesuits the control of churches and religions in the world.

With this Enlil and Anu made sure of having control over the minds of humankind and their farm was taking shape little by little. They did not want to make the same error of the past, in which humans rebelled to their submission, and decided that the human Lulus would not have time to think and to liberate themselves, even they would not realize that they were living as slaves in an artificial matrix created by them.

To achieve this, they entrusted the Government of the United States to invest in different secret programs as the MK-ULTRA and Monarch Project to study the human mind and understand it without the population noticing it.

In addition, Enlil commissioned the Zionists, His Chosen People, to do the same, but through the entertainment industry, so they decided to create a database at the Tavistock Institute from which they would create the trends and the unique thought of the masses to manipulate them as if they were puppets. An example of that was the hippie movement of the 60s & 70s, at which they led teenagers to try synthetic drugs and to try drugs without love under the false belief that they were the resistance and the group of protest at that time.

During this time, the human sacrifices in the form of wars did not cease. A clear example was the Vietnam War which killed more than a million people. The Reptilians were pleased by the energy captured from Uras, Earth. However, fearful that Jesus sent a wave of energy of awareness to the Earth, they instructed the Anunnaki to accelerate the extraction of the blood of the Earth, which is the oil, to lower its vibrational frequency and thus, mitigate the reception of waves of awareness by the planet.

That is why Anu used his secret society, the Illuminati, to create oil companies and stay with the control of the energy of the planet. And by the way, weaken it a little. Since then, no alternative energy is allowed all over the world.

The Pleiadeans, who were in the Moon, seeing that several extraterrestrial races were already interacting with the Earth, decided to intervene in a discreet manner to help the awakening of humankind. So they started to contact several humans by conveying different knowledge and tips to save the human race. These contacts managed to convey the message and to make a little balance.

While all of this was happening, the humans who were on Mars and that lived with the Intraterrestrials and Carians managed to achieve a significant breakthrough in their evolution. To the level of practicing telekinesis and telepathy.

The Galactic Confederation, seeing this great step in so little time, decided to send several spy emissaries to monitor closely these humans, since they were afraid that another Jesus appeared.

Enki, seeing that humankind on Earth was being manipulated and totally controlled, and that they showed no signs of evolution, decided to wait and counteract the blows of his brother Enlil and his father Anu through his secret lodge of the White Dragons, since upon the intervention of so many extraterrestrial races on Earth, it was inevitable that human technology would advance, and his arrival in the digital era was inevitable. So, he decided that to happen in order to use that technology to help humankind. In addition, he wanted to wait for the second wave of awareness that Jesus had promised so the liberation of the Lulus would be easier.

In the year 1989 in the Earth, the grey ones were still doing experiments to successfully mix human DNA with theirs for the creation of a hybrid that would live free, infiltrated among humans. They had not yet achieved it.

The computers and chips were increasingly up-to-date, and as Enki predicted, humankind was venturing into the Digital Age.

The Soviet Union, worn out by all natural resources that they yielded to the Insectoids in exchange for technology, decided to make a peace treaty with the United States to let them win the Cold War, while they recovered and continued understanding and using the technology of these Insectoids beings.

And on November 9, 1989, the Berlin Wall fell, and with it, the triumph of capitalism in the world was confirmed. This opened the doors for the Illuminati to fully implement their New World Order, with which they would have total control of Humankind…

The Beginning of the New World Order

Coming to an agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union, to implant in the world the capitalism, it became clear that the law of the jungle was applied to the World Economy.

With this, the Illuminati finally moved towards globalization. And they gained ground to implant their long-awaited New World Order that they were looking for many decades ago, and that they had not been able to make thanks to the halt imposed by the members of the Brotherhood of the White Dragon.

Enki had learned that, to stop the progress of Anu and Enlil, he not only had to return to the Brotherhood of the White Dragon, but also had to infiltrate its members in key positions of power in order to curb the dark plans of the Illuminati, which up to that time, he had achieved it. However, Anu and Enlil, with the help of television, they knew they could introduce the New World Order in the collective unconscious and thus, create a reality at their whim.

Previously, they promoted it with books such as George Orwell's 1984, or A Happy World by Aldous Huxley. Or through comics and science fiction stories in Hollywood. But they realized that these media did not reach many people, but only a few. And in this way, they had failed to implement the idea in the collective unconscious of the majority and therefore, their goal had failed to materialize. But now, with the success of the television, they could easily deploy their idea through subliminal and hidden messages and, in this way, introduce the idea in a large number of people without them noticing it.

So they did not take long to proclaim it to the whole world. And in January of 1991, shortly after the Gulf war, they used a puppet controlled by Illuminati named George Bush (father), who was president of the United States at that time, and took advantage of a speech he gave at the national chain in which he announced the beginning of the New World Order. Anu and Enlil calculated that this would be implemented in seven or nine years approximately. However, the actions of the White Dragon did not allow it. Or at least, not at all.

Covert wars or sacrifices continued throughout the world, and the human farm was feeding the Draconians and Anunnaki Reptilians.

By 1997 the Insectoids had already finished removing the natural resources they needed for their planet. They had a covenant of peace with the Reptilians after the Great Galactic War in which they participated. However, they put at risk this peace treaty. Far from leaving Uras, Earth, they only pretended to go so the Anunnaki did not suspect it, since they left several of their species infiltrated and hidden among the humans of Russia, and continued to exchange knowledge and technology with them so they could compete in the future, to be the first world power and thus, be able to wrest control of the human farm to the Usumgal Anunnaki.

The Illuminati, desperate because they could not realize their new world order, were preparing a big blow to create a Third World War that would guarantee the total control of the world. Advised by Anu in the year 2001, they decided to attack the most significant symbol of the world economy: the World Trade Center, disguised as a false flag. They predicted that this blow would be sufficient to unleash the chaos required to create a new war on a world scale. But it was not so, because the White Dragon acted fast and did not allow most of the nations to take actions because of this attack. In addition, the Insectoids advised Russia not to take sides, because they were sure it was a ploy of the Usumgal Anunnaki.

Despite the fact that this attack generated a wave of fear throughout the world, and substantially increased the negative energy captured by the Draconians, Enlil and Anu were really surprised that humankind was getting tired of wars, but they did not give up. To Enlil, it occurred that the new sacrifices, in addition, to disguise them as wars, they would also be disguised as terrorism and instructed his Chosen People to finance more attacks around the world.

September 11 was not only a date that changed history and that implanted fear in the world, but it was also used as an experiment to see if the collective unconscious helped create the reality much quicker, as this event had been encrypted previously announced in several movies, series, and cartoons; and they succeeded in doing so. With this, the Illuminati were able to measure the effectiveness of the hidden messages for implantation in the collective subconscious in order to, later become a reality. Since then, the media bombardment of this type of message is constantly increasing, since they knew very well that the collective thinking can change reality at its whim.

At the beginning of 2000, new technologies flooded the world. And one, in particular, promoted by the White Dragon, became the hope of Enki to help the awakening of humankind occur once and for all. This technology was the Internet. With it, Enki thought to counter the television and begin to transmit messages contrary to it for the awakening of human consciousness. Although refine it and making it popular in the world took several years.

Little by little, this became the only channel to talk about what was going on in the world. It was thanks to the internet that people knew of the secret lodges that govern the world behind the scenes and their dark plans to introduce the New World Order. In short, it began the slow awakening of humankind.

When Enlil and Anu realized that the Internet was contrary to their plans, they began to try to control it. They knew they had little time to carry out their plans since the Second Wave of Awareness, prepared by Jesus from the fifth dimension, was about to come to Earth and they were afraid that their plans would not be finished by then. So, they began to use the Chosen People, the Illuminati and all their secret lodges to accelerate their objective and once and for all establish their New World Order…

We Are the Ultimate Light

Enki put all his hopes on the Internet for the awakening of the consciousness of the people. This technology became the only mass media which was not controlled by the Illuminati and which exposed the true origin of the human being, and in addition, it revealed who the real enemies of humankind were.

The Brotherhood of the White Dragon did a magnificent job to disseminate these ideas through this medium which slowly began to grow. This bothered Enlil because, for the first time, the best-kept secrets of the Anunnaki were finally revealed to humankind. He knew that the potential of this technology was immense. What bothered him was that there was nothing he could do, since the Internet was totally controlled by the members of the White Dragon. So, he took the only weak point that the Internet had: its openness and total freedom. He immediately instructed his Chosen People to begin to invest in this new technology and to flood it with contents that would control the masses. As he had done with the television.

If he could not control the Internet, at least he was going to take advantage of it and flood it with spam to confuse people more. And that was how the famous social networks were born, with which they wanted to control the masses.

The success of the networks was immediate, as these social networks were used to extract the information from all users: their names, their address, their likings, their friends, their relatives, etc., and facilitated the search of any person. It marked the beginning of the total control of users. Finally, the much awaited Orwellian World became reality. Although there was one more step to get this technology to have the impact they wanted.

Enlil was convinced that the human Lulus were a race much lower, self-destructive by nature and that they did not have the slightest hope to evolve on this planet prison. So he asked Anu the hidden technology with which they could zombify the whole humankind once and for all, but he refused, because contrary to what Enlil thought, Anu believed that the Lulus had great potential and he feared that they would evolve to the extent that Jesus did. So, these technologies that his Anunnaki subjects had developed, remained still hidden. However, at the insistence of Enlil, he was convinced and decided to release this technology with which humans could have internet all the time in the palm of their hands. Thus, there were born the Wi-Fi and Smartphones, which were able to connect to the Internet at all times.

Enlil knew that this represented a great opportunity for the world to use social networks and be connected, such as a hive mind, with ideas that they wanted to impose on us.

Enki, surprised by the release of this technology, saw in it a great opportunity to continue awakening human minds, and even more when the wave of awareness that Jesus was going to send to Earth was close. Enki firmly believed that this was a big mistake of his father Anu and that it would mean the liberation of humankind.

Anu, fearful that with this technology he started to awaken humans, instructed his Illuminati subjects to, little by little, legislate laws that took control of the internet, as he already had done with other media.

It was 2007, and Jesus was almost ready to send the second wave of awareness to the Earth, so he contacted the Pleiadeans to calibrated and prepare the Moon. Jesus told them that he wanted to take advantage of the winter solstice to maximize the impact of the shock and to last as long as possible.

The Pleiadeans got to work and calculated that the Moon would be ready within five Earth years approximately.

When Anu and Enlil found out the date on which the wave of awareness would collide with the Earth, they began to try to revert it. So they came up with the idea of spreading the false Maya prophecy of the end of the world in all its media and across the internet, and also instructed to make a catastrophe film so in the subconscious of people, it converted this date of the awakening of consciousness, in a catastrophic and terrific date. With this, he wanted to minimize the impact of this Wave of awareness sent by Jesus.

Enki was frustrated because, despite the fact that many people were waking up thanks to the internet, the vast majority had fallen into the trap of Enlil. And they only used social networks and trivial content. And for the hundredth time, he lost faith in humankind and began to think if Enlil was right and humans were a race doomed not to evolve. His last hope was the next wave of awareness, so he instructed the members of the White Dragon to use social networks and disseminate the Anunnaki secrets. In addition to deny the prophecy of the end of the world about which humankind was worried.

The day finally came. On December 21, 2012, the second wave of awareness came to Earth and would have an approximate duration of 13 years.

Since then, humankind is increasingly concerned about their environment, they feel more empathy towards animals, and they believe less and less in the rotten system in which they live. The awakening of humankind had begun. But not at the pace that Enki and Jesus himself would like since the awakening has been slow. This is due to the Illuminati plan to normalize their bizarre rituals, because, after that day, they have been responsible for bombing the population with dark messages through all their media, and are trying to normalize all their aberrations.

Enlil was frustrated with this new wave of awareness, as his new order had not been completed. However, he did not quit and entrusted his Chosen People to continue with their agenda.

Enki with this plan of conscience, slow, but assertive, regained faith in humankind and continued leading the Brotherhood of the White Dragon to hinder all the plans of his father and brother.

While this was happening, the grey ones had already managed to infiltrate between humans their new hybrid race, half human - half grey ones, with which they ensured the continuity of their kind and prepared in secret to rebel against the Draconians.

The Kadistu had a meeting with the leaders of the Galactic Confederation by 2013, and among other issues, they addressed the Wave of Awareness that Jesus once more had sent to Earth, and decided to give humans the last opportunity and not to intervene, since they were afraid that another human could reach the level of Jesus, they also knew that the human race was one of the few with the gift of expressing feelings. so, it was worth taking the risk this race would evolve by itself. With the Galactic Confederation, they agreed that this would be the last wave of Awareness that humans would have since when it ended, the Kadistu would join together to lock the power of Jesus and not allow him to help again. Because they knew that if the humans of Earth did not evolve, they would focus on the advanced humans who were on Mars, and would leave Uras, Earth, as one of the prison planets more difficult to overcome.

In the year 2015, an unexpected galactic event happened. The extraterrestrial race of Felines decided to declare war on the Draconians for an alleged invasion that they had made to a planet controlled by the Felines. This put on red alert to the Galactic Confederation and the whole galaxy, since the Felines were the only race able to beat the Reptilians.

With this event, the Draconians that took care of the farm and gave orders to Anu and the Usumgal Anunnaki had to withdraw to join the war against the Felines. Anu saw a magnificent opportunity to finally get rid of the Draconians control, since he had realized that, for more than half of his life, he had been enslaved by them and the Lulus. He said to Enlil, Enki, and his entire fleet to escape to a planet away from the war. Everyone accepted, but Enlil and Enki, since they wanted to finish what they had begun. And at that moment, he realized that his two sons were obsessed with the human race and there was nothing he could do.

Anu and his fleet escaped from the astral bottom of the fourth dimension and decided to materialize in the third dimension. In a lonely planet away from the war that their race was carrying out. Anu knew that there, on that planet, he wanted to live the last years of his life.

With the fleeing of Anu, the balance of forces arrived to achieve their mission.

The Insectoids, for their part, had their own agenda to seize control of the farm. So they prepared Russia to become the new empire when deploying their new order.

However, Enlil is moving his Chosen People and the Illuminati to prevent it and continue with control of the Earth.

The Intraterrestrials started to monitor the Insectoids to prevent their plan to succeed.

The Carians were more interested in trying to end the war between The Draconians and the Felines than in the Earth.

Enki knew that with the withdrawal of the Draconians and the momentary withdrawal of Anu, this was a unique opportunity for humankind to be liberated.

But this does not depend on Jesus, nor Enki, nor any other extraterrestrial race that wanted to help us. The awakening depends on ourselves. We are at a point where the New Order is close to being implanted, but also close to humankind fully awake. It is up to us the end that we want to give this story.

It is time to wake up!

A u t h o r ’ s N o t e

Dear reader, I know that everything you just read (research all those words in italics so that you can understand a little better, because those words deserve more study on your part, and that, in addition, they are the most important part of this book) is a short science fiction story. But in all that, there is some truth.

You must continue to love your religion above all things. No matter what. It is the best to continue leading the normal life that you currently have. But I know that among some of my readers there will be a few who think the same as me.

Those are the ones who have started their release.

T h a n k y o u !

Dear reader,

THANK YOU for choosing Anunnaki: Reptilians in the History of Humankind.

If you enjoyed the book, a review would be appreciated as it helps other readers discover this story.

I love you, reader.

I will see you in another story.

Henry Krane

THE AUTHOR

Henry Krane is a english writer of science fiction, and conspiration stories for children, who was born in London, England, in 1978. He attended his primary school in the Lord Andrew Britain, then in 1986, he continued his studies at the Private School Oxford, where he discovered the stories, in his happy hours of reading, of the writer Zecharia Sitchin, whom he took as great reference and inspiration for his writings, together with the poet and writer David Icke. From 2004 to 2006 he devoted himself to studying all about editorial design, where he consolidated his knowledge in the fine art of the layout and editing of texts with different text editing programs at the Institute of Graphic & Scan.

In March 1992 he began his studies at the Institute of Computing and Informatics, Bruning London, which ended in 2008; year in which he began to devote himself completely to Literature, writing several stories in his personal blog, which he erased following the advice of his mentor.

These stories were of sci-fi, a genre that he was passionate about, since he has the use of reason.

Since 1996, he worked as web designer and programmer of desktop applications in the company LR Connection (LRC), an associated company, devoted to computers in both branches: hardware and software. But his true vocation was marked. He continued to write compulsively not only sci-fi, but also Conspiration, he never stopped in his dream of being a writer.

In October 2001 he decided to study Bussiness Administration at the Sidney University, a profession with which he felt identified and absorbed a lot of knowledge on doing business, returning to the business with his colleagues/partners of the company LRC, and making internal improvements, such as the distribution of computer accessories to their customers and the quality of the service of their employees with respect to customer satisfaction.

In the year 2012 he started to work in the company of Industrial Plastics, RECYCLA MAX. as logistics assistant, in which, until 2008, he continued with his role as a Sales Supervisor, and then, he decides to return to his true passion: writing.

With a business with his partners and working in this new company, he fully devotes himself to literature.

He currently has three books published in the most popular retailers of electronic books in the world. These three books are his early writings, conspiration stories, but they are not the only ones. He wrote a trilogy, which he expects to complete soon to edit it. He has also written a satellite book in order to understand his Trilogy: Anunnaki.

To continue to contribute to the world of sci-fi and conspiration is his greatest wish in life. It has already begun.
